TEUTON ARMIES CAPTURE WARSAW

POLICE SEEK AUTOISTS WHO KILLED QUINCY MAN

William H. Conway, killed by auto and members of his family. Above, at left, Martha, aged 9, Mrs. Conway and Catherine, aged 17. Below, Mary, aged 7.

The Quincy police today joined forces with the inspectors of the Massachusetts Highway Commission, in an effort to trace the automobilists who ran over and killed William H. Conway of Quincy, and then with lights dimmed fled without stopping to ascertain what damage they had caused.

A wife and four children in poor circumstances survive Conway. The children are Mary, aged seven; Martha, aged nine; Catherine, aged seventeen, and a married daughter. Conway was fifty years old and employed at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company.

Mayor Chester I. Campbell of Quincy was informed of the fatality as he stepped from a train on his return from a visit to the San Francisco Fair. He immediately turned to Acting Chief of Police Daniel R. McKay and said:

"Let nothing be left undone and no money be spared in hunting down these people. Wherever the evidence warrants it, make every effort to land reckless auto drivers in jail."

Conway's death follows the killing, July 24, of three-year-old Hollis A. Travers, of Weston, under similar circumstances.

Conway, who lived with his wife and family at No. 339 Water street, Quincy, was riding on an express wagon with Joseph Foley and Michael Parker. As the wagon slowed up in West Squantum street, near Berry's Corner, Conway jumped and fell to the ground.

A high-powered runabout was approaching. Witnesses claim that the rear light of the machine were not lighted and therefore it was impossible to get the number of the car. It is said the driver did not sound his horn as he was rapidly approaching the man, who was lying in the road. Foley and Parker shouted to him to turn out, as Conway had been injured. Their cries were unheeded and the machine was driven directly over the man's body.

VILLA TROOPS MUTINY

GOV. WALSH TO RUN AGAIN

MUTINY BY ARMY OF VILLA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Secretary Lansing announced today that he had received advices that the Carranzaista forces are bringing up artillery forces across the border from Nogales, Ariz. This was taken to mean here that the Mexican commander intended bombarding General Maytorena's position. This, it is said, will precipitate action by American troops, as shells are sure to fall on the American side.

By LEWIS T. MATSON,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 5.—With reports that General Francisco Villa's troops in Torreon have mutinied and that the revolutionary leader has gone to Samalyuca, twenty miles south of Juarez, to confer with his agents in the United States, the Mexican situation took on a confused appearance today.

Villa had 7,000 men under arms in Torreon but the mutiny seems to have arisen through the desire of the soldiers for peace. Advices from Torreon state that the troops, after throwing down their arms, marched through the streets shouting:

"We want peace," and "Long live peace."

CONFERENCE SCHEDULED.

It was announced that a conference would take place either today or tomorrow with the following participating.

General Villa, General Filipe Angeles, the chief of ordnance in Villa's army, Miguel Lombardo, foreign minister in Villa's cabinet, and George C. Carothers, special agent of the American State Department.

"I will not stop fighting" was word Villa sent here. "They think they have me cornered, but it is the man who is cornered that fights hardest. I will go into the mountains with the men who remain loyal if it comes to the worst, and will fight to the death."

Eight Mexicans have been brought here from Fort Hancock where they were captured by Texas rangers.

GOVERNOR GIVEN BIG WELCOME

Governor Walsh, who returned to the Commonwealth today from a visit to California and the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will run again.

This was the positive information which came to the newspaper men who met the Governor and his party today at Albany.

"The Governor will announce his decision in a formal message to the people of the State tonight or later in the week, reviewing the achievements of his administration and setting forth the causes which prompt him to run again.

The Governor, who is returning to the Commonwealth in fine health and spirits as the result of his trip, was given a most rousing welcome home.

PRAISES EXPOSITION.

"We had a most enjoyable and interesting trip," said the Governor, aboard the train between Albany and Pittsfield. "The exposition at San Francisco is wonderful. The Massachusetts building is one of the attractions of the exposition. The people of the State should and will be proud of it.

"Massachusetts Day at the exposition was one long to be remembered. Sons and daughters of the old Bay State who have been away from Massachusetts for years came from all parts of the West to participate in the ceremonies of that day. So great was their joy in hearing the story of her achievements that many were moved to tears.

"Wherever I have gone, however, and I have been in nearly all the western States, as well as Canada, I found no place quite like our own Massachusetts. I am returning prouder than ever of Massachusetts and her people and indeed, I might add, more concious of the great honor of being her chief executive," the Governor concluded.

When asked to talk politics the governor said: "I would rather not discuss that subject until after my return."

The party passed through Colorado Springs six minutes after a tornado had completed its devasting course. They also passed through Erie, where they saw the Pennsylvania city reclaiming itself from the wreckage of the cloudburst. Otherwise the trip was uneventful and pleasant.

OFFICIAL SONG.

When the train arrived at Pittsfield the Massachusetts party sprang for the first time in this State their official song, composed by Speaker Cox of the House of Representatives. The song is:

"Le, I guess I'll take the train back home.
There are no new rules for me to use.
I've wined and dined and gazed on bills of fare,
But California is a grand old State,
But she cannot beat a gilded dome.
Massachusetts, see all State.
Massachusetts, see, that's great!
So I guess I'll take the train back home.

MET BY STAFF.

At Pittsfield the Governor was joined by his military staff, who had journeyed up from Boston last night. The staff included:

Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole, Major William J. Keville, Captains Dana T. Gallup, James D. Coady, Frank M. Gunby and Ambrose Clogher and Lieutenant Nathaniel T. Very.

The Governor returned after an absence of thirty days with the party designated by the State to attend the Exposition. Their trip has taken them nearly 10,000 miles. The important stops were made at San Francisco, where the Governor delivered the principal address in celebration of Massachusetts Day, and at San Diego, where the party represented the State at the local exposition.

Pope Soon to Start Campaign to Bring Peace

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, Aug. 5.—Pope Benedict XV. will launch a great campaign for peace in Europe at the next consistory held at the Vatican. This probably will take place between the end of August and the middle of September.

In addition to the cardinals taking part in the consistory, bishops from the largest cities of Europe will be invited to come here and participate in the great council, which will issue a peace appeal to every belligerent nation.

Held for Threat on Life of President

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 5.—Investigation was begun today by government secret service agents into the history and associations of F. H. Juergens, who was arrested last night charged with threatening to take the lives of President Wilson and former President Roosevelt and also the destruction of the national Capitol. The letter which led to his arrest was written upon the stationery of a prominent business man and this man's name had been written at the bottom of it. The subject of the letter is the shipment of war supplies from the United States to Europe.

Juergens is held in $2,000 bail.

Steamer Rescues Crippled Schooner

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Aug. 5.—Dashing along the coast at full speed in response to signals flashed from life saving stations on the New Jersey coast, the steamer Bermudian overhauled the crippled schooner B. W. Angel, forty-five miles east of the Atlantic Highlands. The schooner was caught in the recent storm off Thimble Shoal. The gale tore her sails to shreds and swept away her lifeboats. The captain signalled the shore stations and they in turn notified the Bermudian, which reached the schooner after an all night run.

Red Sox and Naps Halted by Rain

The double-header between the Red Sox and Cleveland Naps, which was scheduled to be played today, was again put over on account of rain. The Red Sox management held out until the last minute, and did not announce that the contests had been called off until shortly after 12 o'clock. A double-header will be played tomorrow, while two games will also probably be staged on Saturday.

POLAND'S CAPITAL FALLS BEFORE ATTACK OF BAVARIAN TROOPS

BERLIN, Aug. 5 (by wireless via Tuckerton, N. J.).—Warsaw has fallen. Official announcement of the capture of the great Russian fortress on the Vistula River, was made today by the German War Office.

The following official statement announcing Warsaw's fall was issued by the War Office:

"Berlin Headquarters reports that Warsaw was taken this morning. Yesterday and last last night Prince Leopold's Bavarian troops broke through the forts on the outer and inner lines, where the Russian rear guards were making enacious resistance."

Warsaw fell before the third Austro-German drive that had for its object the capture of the Russian stronghold.

The capture of the fortress means that the Germans are now in possession of a great part of the network of strategic railways in central Poland, which the Russians had been using to shift troops from one part of their battle front to the other, and for the transportation of ammunition and food to the front.

DRIVE BEGAN IN MAY.

The campaign which ended in the capture of the Polish capital began early in May, when Field Marshal Von Mackensen with a vast Austro-German army at his back began driving the Russians from the Carpathians.

Surging eastward the Germans and Austrians first took the mountain positions of the Russians and then captured Przemysyl and Lemberg. After the Russians had been driven from Galicia Field Marshal Von Mackensen began sweeping northward to get in behind Warsaw.

FARMHAND HELD IN MAHONEY DEATH CASE

Thomas Connolly, forty-one years old, a farmhand on the estate of Attorney Clarence W. Rowley in North Reading, pleaded not guilty today in the Woburn District Court to a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Frank Mahoney, fifty-five years, of Boston, and was held in $2,000 for a hearing August 10.

Mahoney was found dead yesterday morning outside Connolly's shack. An autopsy showed that death was due to a blood clot on the brain, caused by a fractured skull.

The police say Connolly told them he met Mahoney Tuesday in Boston and that they returned to North Reading together. When it came time to retire, Connolly said he suggested that Mahoney use one of the beds in the shack, but that Mahoney said he would sleep outside. He said he was awakened at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by the barking of a dog, and, going outside found Mahoney dead.

State Officer Silas P. Smith is investigating.

GERMANS TAKE TRENCHES ON MOUNTAIN

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—A section of the French trenches on [illegible] Linge[illegible]of in the Vosges Mountains has been captured by the Germans. Admission of the German gain was made in an official communique issued by the French War Office today.

The Germans first bombarded the French positions with the utmost violence and then launched a terrific assault with infantry.

This attack was generally repulsed except at one point where the Germans gained a foothold.

The capture of eleven German offi[illegible] eight mitrailleuses and a great num[illegible] was announced in the [illegible] sector of Ban-De-Sapt in the Vosges [illegible] announced by the French War Office today in a special communique.

The statement which refers to fighting in the Vosges declares that the French soldiers outclassed the Germans in the fighting.

STORM WREAKS HAVOC; "FAIR" IS FORECAST

Storm-swept New England emerged today from it's 42-centimetre battering by the elements which caused tremendous property damage. Boston like practically every other city in New England bore the marks of the terrific downpour of rain.

Though it drizzled today and the clouds were still threatening, the official forecast gave promise that the big storm had abouts layed itself out. However, yesterday the forecast was for clear warm weather today. But the weather man gave out this prediction this afternoon:

"Unsettled—Thursday, cloudy and clearing tonight. Fair tomorrow with moderate easterly winds."

The storm's rainfall was a record-breaker for intensity, if not for its total. The total is 2.28 inches, but most of this fell inside of two hours, which is more rain than for any other two hours in the history of the local weather bureau.

On the first day of last July 4.45 inches of rain fell, but it was scattered over a longer period of time than yesterday's downpour.

HEAVY DAMAGE.

The damage in New England amounted to thousands of dollars. Estimates placed the damage in Lynn alone at $100,000.

Through Greater Boston cellars were flooded and gardens were practically ruined. Trains were delayed by serious washouts, and delayed trains meant delayed business men and delayed mails. Damage to crops in the New England States were unusually severe.

Along the coast many small pleasure craft were sunk or set adrift. The yacht Aroline, flying distress signals was found abandoned by life savers at Wood Island, off Newcastle, N. H. Fears were entertained for its owners and crew until reports came today that they were safe at Port Constitution, Portsmouth.

PLEASURE BOATS SUFFER.

A yacht blown by the wind into the Harbor View basin, East Boston, was jammed in under one of the trucks of the "narrow guage" in such manner as to delay traffic for half an hour.

Telephone and telegraph wires were felled at numerous points. Many trees were uprooted.

ARMY OF VILLA IN TORREON MUTINIES

while trying to cross the border. They declared that they were planning to join a new revolution under General Pascual Orozco.

It was reported here today that Mrs. Villa, who arrived here on Monday night, is arranging to go to San Francisco and that she expects her husband to join her here for the trip in a few days. Villa, it was added, is collecting all the money he can get prior to quitting Chihuahua for the United States.

FORCES MERCHANTS TO SELL.

News from Chihauhua says that the sale of merchandise confiscated from Mexicans had about been concluded and that the stocks of foreigners will be put up next.

The "sales" are virtual confiscations, for Villa in forcing the merchants to sell their goods for his own money, making them take his paper "pesos" for 50 cents, when they are not bringing 2 cents on the border.

It was said that the report of the rescinding of the Villa confiscation order was false.

FUNSTON READY FOR ANY EMERGENCY IN MEXICAN SITUATION

By JOHN E. NEVIN, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The fate of Mexico hung in the balance today. While the diplomatic representatives of Latin-America and Secretary of State Lansing discussed a program for the restoration of constitutional government in the blood-stained republic, the army and navy was getting ready for any eventuality.

General Fred Funston was holding all the forces under his command ready to move anywhere along the border to check marauding bands and to enforce any embargo that may be decided upon. Another battery of artillery was en route from Fort Sill to El Paso and cavalry regiments at several points had been quietly tipped that they might get marching orders shortly.

Although the conference between Secretary Lansing and the South American diplomats was not scheduled to commence until 3:30, the State Department hummed with activity. The newly organized division of Mexican affairs had compiled all of the reports received from American consular representatives at every point in Mexico.

The suggestion that General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army, be sent to mediate between the factions was generally approved. Whether it will be carried out, however, was doubtful, in as much as President Wilson is understood to feel that enough time has been wasted by personal envoys.

Starving Americans in Mexico City will get relief in a few days. The Red Cross today purchased 16,000 worth of foodstuffs for them at New Orleans. The foodstuff will be shipped on a steamer sailing for Vera Cruz tomorrow. It is expected to reach Mexico City by the first of next week.

'Germans Lie in Barbarism Cry,' Say Slavs

PETROGRAD, Aug. 5.—The war office today issued a denial of charges of barbarism made against Rusian sailors by Germany, saying:

"An official German communique accuses our sailors in the Black Sea of barbarism against Turkish ships, alleging that Russians sink vessels with their crews without examining them. Although these accusations are made by a government which violates not only international law but also the customary principles of humanity, the General Staff feels bound to refute these accusations by declaring the German communique is a lie.

"All those who surrender are taken aboard the warships and sent to Sebastopol. This rule is followed even when the Turkish ships pretend they wish to surrender and then open fire on our submarines."

Kaiser Gives Austrian Duke Prussian Rank

REPORT TURKEY AND GERMANY NEAR BREAK

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, Aug. 5.—Reliable advices from Turkey indicate that anarchy is rife in Constantinople, that Turkey and Germany are near the parting, and that Turkey will do its utmost to prevent a break with Italy.

To meet the Rome government's demand for the protection of its subjects, it is said that Turkey will permit all Italians in Asia Minor to return to their own country via Vourla, on the Gulf of Smyrna.

German and Turkish military leaders are reported to have become so seriously divided that Enver Pasha, the Ottoman Minister of War, has demanded the recall of General Liman von Sanders, defender of the Dardanelles, to Berlin. At a recent dinner given by Enver Pasha only Turkish notables were invited.

She was immediately taken to the home of a neighbor. Burke, with two shots in the arm and one in his breast, sat on the piazza until Policeman Sunbury arrived with the patrol.

In Will Urges Daughters to Be Generous

The will of Martha E. Stockwell of No. 23 Orkney street, filed in the Suffolk Probate Court, leaves most of her estate to her two daughters, but suggests they give away some of it.

She describes her own method of being charitable as giving small sums to the needy and deserving.

The two daughters are Marie Louise Stockwell of Boston and Alice Webb Stahr of Reading, Pa. The property is to be divided equally between them. In the event they die without heirs, the following public bequests will stand: $5,000 to Highland Congregational Church, Parker street; $3,000, City Missionary Society; $3,000, Women's Board of Missions; $200, Kindergarten for the Blind; $100, Old Ladies' Home in Roxbury; $100, Union Matutinal Association.

Mrs. Stockwell was the widow of Stephen N. Stockwell. She died July 30.

CHARGES ATTACK BY BROOKLINE DENTIST

That Dr. George M. Lee, a dentist, attacked her in his office, No. 1353 Beacon street, Brookline, is the charge in a bill in equity brought by Miss Hazel Dimick, of No. 140 Maple street, Malden. She is nineteen.

In the bill she states she visited Dr. Lee's office several times for professional treatment and that on one of these occasions he attacked her.

She claims he agreed to settle her claim for $2,500, but after she signed a release failed to pay over the money. She seeks to reach property alleged to be held in trust for Dr. Lee by Lawrence A. Ford, of Beverly, and Thomas F. Maguire, of Boston.

Miss Dimick is the daughter of Frederick F. Dimick, secretary of the Boston Fish Bureau, and is nineteen years old.

Dr. Lee, it is said, is heir to a $15,000 estate. He is twenty-eight and a graduate of Harvard.

Remove Safety Pin Stuck in Baby's Windpipe

The remarkable feat of removing from a baby's windpipe an open safety pin which was stuck in the wall of the windpipe has been performed by Dr. A. E. Garland at the Children's Hospital, Longwood.

The baby was nine-months-old Chester Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe of No. 5 Joy street, Cambridge. He swallowed the pin three weeks ago and the resulting trouble was at first diagnosed as bronchial pneumonia.

When the trouble persisted, an X-ray revealed the pin in the baby's windpipe. By the use of a bronchoscope and slender forceps the point of the pin was withdrawn from the wall of the windpipe where it was stuck and was gradually manipulated out through the child's mouth.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

NEW BLOCKADE NOTE PLANNED TO BRITAIN

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The important admission is made today by high government officials that the Wilson-Bryan arbitration treaty with Great Britain covers all the disputes between the United States and England over wrongs to American commerce.

In her latest notes Great Britain announced she would proceed under her own conception of international law and that the remedy of the United States would be arbitration.

NEW NOTE TO BRITAIN.

It seems probable now that the United States will send that result, but not until after President Wilson has sent another note to Great Britain, insisting on his interpretation of international law and given in his two former notes.

One high official said the arguments of Great Britain in her last notes were substantially the same as those made by Germany in her previous notes, "even to the detail of suggesting arbitration either by The Hague or by some other tribunal. He said:

"The United States must reply in the most vigorous terms to the points of international law laid down by Great Britain.

UP TO THE SENATE.

"President Wilson does not admit retaliation to be justifiable. He maintains that the mere assertions of retaliation as an excuse proves that it is wrong in fact and in theory.

"The next and final step will be caused by the first action of Great Britain in her prize court in violation of the principles we laid down in the Neches case and in our recent note about the action of the prize court, ignoring our protest, be a violation of the material and legal rights of the owners of American goods or ships, the United States will declare to Great Britain that there has been a denial of justice. This declaration will cause Great Britain to bring the question of arbitration on the specific case and the question will again become one of diplomacy.

WARSAW TAKEN BY GERMAN ARMIES

General Von Buelow had cut into Russian Courland with a gigantic cavalry army and dashed toward Riga in order to sever the Warsaw-Petrograd lines of communication and prevent the retirement of Grand Duke Nicholas's Russian army.

All along the line the Russians retired. They were lacking in arms and ammunition and opposing them was the flower of the German and Austrian army.

Field Marshal Von Hindenburg threw a gigantic army along the Bzura River line and then moved forward until he was about fifteen miles from Warsaw, when he came to a halt.

North of Warsaw armies under General Von Gallwitz and General Scholtz were smashing away at the Russian lines on the Narew. South of Warsaw, in the region of Ivangorod, the armies of General Dankl and General von Woyrsch were engaged in a crushing drive against the Russian line on the Vistula.

Still further to the south the armies of Archduke Joseph Ferdinand of Austria and Field Marshal von Mackensen were also pushing along the Lublin-Cholm-Krassnostaw-Krasnik line.

SEVEREST BLOW TO RUSSIA.

Further still to the southeast the forces of General von Boehm were locked with the Russians to prevent any attempt to outflank the Austro-German armies.

From a decisive engagement for the possession of Warsaw the engagement grew into a mighty conflict with the fate of the grand army of Russia at stake.

Warsaw was one of the strongest links in the great chain of fortresses across Poland protecting the interior of Russia from invasion and its fall is the severest blow that Russia has suffered since war began almost a year ago today. Warsaw is also the great western converging point for the Russian railway systems with its great bridges over the Vistula. Ever since the war began Warsaw has been the base of Russian operations.

BAVARIANS WON HONOR.

Grand Duke Nicholas made his headquarters there and the great base hospitals were situated there. In addition to the value of Warsaw from a military standpoint the political and moral effect of the victory will be far reaching. Countries now neutral but which are upon the brink of war will pause.

On the German side patriotism will loom still higher.

It is regarded as significant that the honor of entering the city was given to the Bavarian troops. It was a well-earned honor, however. During the recent hard fighting on the Bzonia front the Bavarians were always on the firing line and they stormed trench after trench at the point of the bayonet, pressing back the Russian defenders until they were finally compelled up to the four of forts guarding the city.

Today's War Office report gives the following additional information concerning operations at the front:

"The armies of General Von Scholtz and General Von Gallwitz have advanced toward the road to Lomza, Ostrow and Wyzkow with violent engagements taking place.

"Desperate Russian resistance on both sides of the road from Ostrow to Rozan was without success. Twenty-two officers and 4,454 soldiers were taken prisoners and we captured seventeen machine guns.

"German cavalry, defeated, in Courland, Russian cavalry near Genaize, Birseni and Onikszhty. Yesterday and the day before 2,225 Russians were taken prisoners.

"The situation near and north of Ivangorod is unchanged.

"Our pursuit of the enemy between the upper Vistula and Bug rivers continues.

"German cavalry has entered the region of Vladimir and Volynsk, east of the Bug.

"In the Vosges there was a new engagement near and south of Lingekopf."

THOU SHALT NOT

By HOWARD NOBLE

THE PURITAN of early New England, because of his attitude toward life and the hereafter, succeeded in making his name synonymous with bigotry, fanaticism and stupidity. Inasmuch as his modern descendants, banded together in an organization known as the ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE, are pushing him hard for this honor, let us consider, for a moment, just who the Puritans were and some of the foolish things they tried to accomplish.

It is safe to predict that whatever comparisons may arise in the reader's mind between early and present-day Puritanism, the palm must be handed to the latter; for the modern Roundheads appear to have learned nothing from the intervening centuries.

The Puritans were a religious sect which arose in England in the 16th century. They gained political ascendancy under Charles the First, but with the death of Cromwell they lost political power and many of them emigrated to New England, one division (the Pilgrim Fathers) landing at Plymouth, in 1620, and the other at Salem and Boston, in 1628-1630.

Upright in character, possessed of many sterling virtues, the Puritans sought to mould all men in accordance with their own narrow conceptions. They aimed at the salvation of the race, and to accomplish this end they evolved the theory that all that was needed was plenty of preaching and laws without end. It was because of their fiery zeal in enforcing those laws that the name Puritan became one of reproach. "Thou shalt not", which was always on the Puritan's lips, expressed his entire scheme of life.

No adequate summary of the famous Blue Laws is possible here. Many of them were never printed. They vary, according to different authorities. In general, they sought to regulate every petty detail of conduct by law. Here is an outline of a few of them:

Non-attendance at church was punished by fine or imprisonment.

Whipping was given for the slightest violations, such as "shooting att fowl on the Sabbath day." Women who scolded were ducked or put in the stocks.

Smoking in some communities was forbidden: in others, within two miles of a meeting house on the Lord's Day; in still others, a man on a journey might smoke only once every ten miles.

Unnecessary walking was not allowed on the Lord's Day, to say nothing of recreations such as swimming, and no man might make a journey on that day.

The wages of carpenters, masons, and all other workers were regulated by law, and woe to him who charged more. Under penalty of law "noe person shall spend his time idly or unprofitably"; and "noe person, either man or woman, shall hereafter make or buy any apparell with any lace on it, silver, golde, silke or threed, under the penalty of the forfecture of such cloathes"; and again, "Hereafter no garment shal bee made with short sleeves, whereby the nakedness of the arm may be discovered by the wearing thereof."

No food or lodging might be given a "Quaker, Adamite or other Heretic"; any person turning Quaker must suffer death if he returned after being banished.

"Married persons must live together or be imprisoned."

"A debtor in prison swearing he has no estate shall be let out, and sold to make satisfaction."

"Whoever sets a fire in the woods and it burns a house shall suffer death."

"No one shall cross a river but an authorized ferryman."

Then, too, were those gruesome laws in the Massachusetts Bay code against witchcraft, which resulted at Salem in such shocking and unnatural crimes in the name of law and religion, and which form the darkest blot in the whole history of Puritanism.

Enough has been cited to afford some insight into the character and aspirations of the Puritans; but it must not be forgotten that while fanatics and bigots, they meant well. The laws they passed were designed to make men "good." The Puritans were merely mistaken in their methods.

Strange to say, however, in one important matter they were liberal—they never attempted to cure the drink evil by prohibition. Although they tried to suppress every other form of personal liberty by law, the absurdity and stupidity of dictating what their fellows should drink and not drink seems never to have occurred to them. That brilliant stroke was left for their descendants of the ANTI-SANITY LEAGUE.

As a matter of fact, with all their austerities, the Puritans were far from being teetotalers. One of the first industries they established was a brew house, and to a man, they enjoyed their beer and ale in moderation. Indeed, the relationship between church and tavern was very close in the old days and at times the two were inextricably mixed.

Next week's installment of this series will deal with the drinking habits of the Puritans and with their efforts to promote temperance.

Beer is one of the few foods free from bacteria. Beer and bread are both made from cereals, and yeast makes both palatable and digestible.—Prof. Chas. F. Chandler, Chemist, Columbia University.

SOUTH BOSTON MAN'S KIN IS GIVEN MEDAL

The extraordinary distinction of being a survivor of the torpedoing of three battleships—the Ocean, the Triumph and the Majestic—belongs to Gun Captain Patrick McCarthy of Barryrow, County Cork, Ireland, a brother of Edward McCarthy of No. 102 West Sixth street, South Boston.

In addition to this the brave seaman has saved the life of a comrade, for which heroism he has been awarded a medal by the British government.

BERLIN WANTS ARBITRATION ON FRYE

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The latest note of Germany in the case of the William P. Frye, the American vessel sunk by the German cruiser Prinz Eitel Freidrich on January 28, as made public by the State Department, rejects the contention of the United States that the act is a violation of the treaty of 1799-1828.

It insists that the treaty stipulations merely obligate Germany to make compensation for the damage sustained by American citizens in the sinking of the vessel. It suggests that each government designate an expert, who shall fix the amount of the indemnity of the vessel and of any American property which may have been sunk with her. This indemnity, Germany says, will be promptly paid.

HAGUE IS SUGGESTED.

If this plan of settlement is not satisfactory to the United States, Germany suggests that the entire question of application of the treaty be submitted to the Hague.

The suggestion of Germany that the amount of indemnity be established by experts to be appointed by the two governments is interpreted here as practically an acceptance of the original request of the United States, which was that Germany transfer the negotiations regarding the monetary claim to the German embassy in Washington because of the fact that the records and witnesses are in this country. It is therefore considered probable that the two governments will get together on this point.

U. S. RESERVES RIGHT.

Germany's alternative proposition, however, is not likely to be accepted by this government—at least in the form in which she makes it. It is believed the United States, if it accepts Germany's suggestion as to a method of establishing a fair indemnity, will reserve the right to protest under the treaty in case a German vessel sinks another American ship under circumstances similar to those in the Frye case, and will also reserve the right to appeal to an international tribunal for a decision regarding the applications of the treaty stipulations.

"The right of sinking," says the German note, "is not mentioned in the treaty and therefore is not expressly permitted nor expressly prohibited, so that on this point the treaty stipulations must be supplemented by the general rules of international law. It is not disputed by the American government that according to the general principles of international law a belligerent is authorized in sinking neutral vessels under almost any conditions for carrying contraband."

ON NEUTRAL COMMERCE.

The note argues for the German interpretation of the disputed treaty provision, contending that its intent is to establish a reasonable compromise between the military interests of the belligerent contracting party and the commercial interests of the neutral party.

"On the one hand," says the note, "the belligerent party is to have the right to prevent the transportation of war supplies to his adversary, even when carried on vessels of the neutral party; on the other hand, the commerce and navigation of the neutral party is to be interfered with as little as possible by the measures necessary for ship prevention and reasonable compensation is to be paid for any inconvenience or damage which may, nevertheless, ensue from the proceeding of the belligerent party."

A German prize court on July 10 held the imperial government for damages, in the Frye case, but fixed no amount, since the United States refused to become a party to the proceedings and demanded settlement by diplomacy under the treaty.

The case of the American steamer Leelanaw, sunk by a German submarine, is parallel to that of the Frye. It now is in the preliminary stages of diplomatic negotiation.

TOM CONNOLLY TO WED IN A CHURCH, FIANCEE DECIDES

Miss Zayma Galvin, bride-to-be of Tom Connolly, the lawyer. No Justice-of-the-Peace wedding for her.

Tom Connolly, the lawyer, Socialist and brother of Jim Connolly, the writer of sea yarns, will be married in a church.

Tom had hinted vaguely about a Justice of the peace until Miss Zayma Galvin of Quincy, whom Tom is to marry in September—the new just came out today—set her foot down as follows:

"It's to be a church wedding."

You married folks know how it is. It is to be a church wedding.

"It's got to be simple, anyway," says Tom.

Accordingly, the latest news is that there will be a simple wedding on September 15 or 20 in St. John's Church, Quincy, of which the Rev. Michael J. Owens is pastor.

CONNOLLY A SOCIALIST.

Mr. Connolly is an enthusiastic Socialist. He frequently speaks on behalf of the I. W. W. and is a familiar figure at labor meetings. Mrs. Connolly-to-be, on the contrary, does not believe in Socialism at all.

"But," she said today, "that does not make any difference. We do not believe the fact will interfere with our happiness. We understand each other on that point very well. I also thoroughly believe with Mr. Connolly in simplicity for weddings. He is right when he says many people spend far too much money on marriage ceremonies."

"On this point Mr. Connolly said: 'There's always some of your friends who count upon your marriage as the time for having a good time at your expense. This will be cut out. If my wife-to-be wants a church ceremony she will have it. It not it will be a simple affair before a justice of the peace. We want those who come to our wedding, whether in church or not, to be happy, but not through any lavish use of money.'

STRONG FOR SIMPLICITY.

"There is nothing like being simple in your tastes and giving your friends the benefit of simplicity. The great display of money at a wedding is an antiquated and mothesten idea and we propose to show it up at our ceremony.

"There will be no getaways. It is going to be a downright simple affair. Many young people make the mistake of spending all they have on the wedding and having nothing for the housekeeping afterward."

Miss Galvin is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Galvin of No. 30 Chestnut street, Quincy. Although but nineteen she is very musical. She was educated in a convent.

OPEN NEW HAVEN WRECK PROBE TODAY

Superintendent F. S. Hobbs of the Plymouth division of the New Haven today planned to begin a rigorous investigation of yesterday's wreck near the Atlantic station. The wreck was the first which has marred the "Safety First" record made by the road under Chairman Howard Elliott's administration.

It is charged that the Plymouth express, which ran into the rear end of the local train, was going forty miles an hour, and this is called too fast for safety in the blinding rain which was falling at the time.

Some passengers claim the engineer of the train could not have seen signals set against him and that he slowed.

In the course of the investigation train crews of both trains, as well as tower and signal men will be questioned. Officials of the New Haven say they are determined to fix the responsibility.

PRESIDENT WILL URGE DEFENCE IN MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The national defence is to be the principal feature of President Wilson's message to Congress, according to word from the Summer White House at Cornish, N. H.

A general outline of the program to be urged on the national Legislature has been worked out by the chief executive after days of hard study.

Letters from Secretary Garrison and Secretary Daniels of the War and Navy portfolios have been received by the President and are understood to have dealt largely with their coming reports on the general subject of defence.

The intention of the Administration to press its fight for the ship purchase bill, which failed in the Senate last session, is made evident in a letter Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury has written to Charles W. Gold, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Greensboro, N. C.

Mr. McAdoo pleads for the South's support of the measure on the ground that an adequate supply of American ships would have maintained both the price and the foreign markets for cotton.

At the same time he connects the plan for government-controlled ships with the demand for an improved navy by declaring that the proposed law would provide the needed auxiliaries, without which the navy cannot be made effective.

Because of the lack of American ships, says Mr. McAdoo, American foreign trade in cotton has been seriously curtailed by the war, and the ill effect of the war has been nowhere felt so keenly as in the South.

Mr. McAdoo blames the failure of the ship purchase bill upon the Republican filibuster, but he admits regretfully that the Republicans were aided by certain Democrats, several of whom were from the South.

MRS. HOLT SUES DR. ADAMS FOR $5,000

Mrs. Ada Mae Holt has again started suit against Dr. Herbert W. Adams, a Dudley street dentist. She asks damages on account of an alleged false marriage ceremony, she says, he induced her to go through with him. This time she places her damages at $5,000.

Mrs. Holt was formerly office girl for Dr. Adams. In her suit she says: "Dr. Adams became ardent and affectionate and by protestations of love and by wiles and artifices took advantage of my youth and induced me first to institute divorce proceedings against my husband, Alexander S. Holt, and then to hasten them."

Sometime ago Mrs. Holt sued Dr. Adams for breach of promise. The case was non-suited and Dr. Adams obtained judgment against her for the costs. She also sued him for compensation during the time she says she acted as his wife, but the Supreme Court held she could not maintain such an action.

A ROCKLAND LADY GIVES TESTIMONIAL

It is often asked if it is not difficult to secure voluntary testimonials for any remedy, no matter how much good it is doing. As a matter of fact, very many testimonials are received in each city where Plant Juice, the new herbs stomach remedy, is being introduced and these are selected which seem written with a genuine desire to benefit other fellow sufferers.

This was what prompted Mrs. S. Lowe of No. 892 North Union Street, Rockland, who is a well-known resident, to give the following testimony: "I have suffered from catarrh of the stomach and gastritis for eight years, also indigestion and dyspepsia. My food did me no good, as it fermented on my stomach, causing gas and a heavy, bloated condition. I was very nervous and restless and did not sleep well at night, had no appetite and nothing tasted good to me. I also was troubled with catarrh in my head. I had taken medicines for years and none of them did me any good. I have taken Plant Juice for only two weeks and I can truthfully say that it is a grand medicine, for now I have a good appetite, sleep well and am able to digest my food. I have no more aches or pains. I enjoy all my meals and have no more catarrh in my head. I am simply feeling fine and am recommending Plant Juice to all my friends."

Plant Juice has like magic in stomach trouble, gas fermentation, dizziness, bloating and heavy, distressed feeling after meals and on retiring. It attacks and destroys all poisons in the blood, corrects diseased condition of the liver and kidneys and restores them to normal condition.

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. —Advertisement.

New Rookie Hurler Landed by Gaffney

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Pitcher Nehf, a southpaw, who has been doing great work on the slab for the Terre Haute (Central League) club, reported to Manager Stallings of the Braves, this morning. Nehf, in 1913, while with Terre Haute was 11-7, not much to brag about, but this season he has been showing great improvement and meetings down the batters in thoroughly approved fashion.

Nehf, who is well built, won eighteen games for Terre Haute this campaign, and his strike-out record is about high for all minor leaguers.

DOUBLE BILL BIKE RACES AT REVERE

One of the greatest cards of racing ever arranged for the Revere Cycle Track is on the bills for Saturday night, when there will be two motor-paced races and an excellent list of amateur and professional events run off.

As last night's races were postponed on account of the rain, this program is really a combination of last night's and last Saturday's, which was also held up by rain.

The main feature of the evening will be a 10-mile match motor-paced race between Clarence Carman and Leon Didier, universally recognized as the leading speed merchants of the middle distance game.

Second only to this event in the matter of importance is the 25-mile motor-paced race between Jimmy Moran, Bobby Washburn, Tinkle Turville and Harold Rollins. This contest was originally scheduled for last Saturday night, was postponed to Monday and then to Tuesday, but rain "killed" it each time. Rain checks issued last Saturday night still hold good for this week-end meet only.

Last night's postponement was the fourth in succession at the Beach Oval and necessitated a complete change in the plans of Manager Nat Butler.

It was only after a long argument that Didier and Carman agreed to meet. Collins was one of the original entry in this race, but as he is contracted to ride in other parts Saturday night, he could not race here.

After much deliberation both Carman and Didier decided from the original stand and signed up. The result should be one of the most sensational races of the season.

Money-Mad Mack Pays $25,000 for Balking Baker

It is costing the "money-mad" Connie Mack just $25,000 to be stubborn.

"Home Run" Baker says he won't play again with the Athletics. Connie says he won't, yet Connie refuses to take the $25,000 that the White Sox and Yankees have offered him for Baker's contract.

Baker is of no use to Mack—and Mack can get $25,000 for him yet he won't sell.

What do you make of it, Watson?

Young Fan Is After Evers with a Gun

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5.—Captain Johnny Evers of the Boston Braves might have been shot and killed if he had not drawn his suspension from President Tener and thus competed in yesterday's game — maybe, perhaps, a youthful fan, armed with a revolver, which he had been brandishing, was escorted from the grounds to the police station by a detective while Eve battle was on. The kid had announced to the bleacherites that he had come to the park to "get" Evers.

When the gun was examined at the station house it was found to be a relic of olden times and in no shape to shoot straight—if at all.

Gilmore Names Stars Sought by the Feds

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—President Jim Gilmore of the Federal League, not only claims that he expects to land fifteen stars from organized baseball, but states that among the topliners who are the recipients of such big bids they can scarcely turn them down are J. Franklin Baker, Grover Alexander, "Stuffy" McInnis and Eddie Collins.

"If money can get them we will have them with us on the 1916 Spring training trips," said President Gilmore.

Baker is spoken of, it is understood, as being the logical man to lead the proposed team in New York city, which will be the only change on the circuit next season, as Louis wants McInnis and Chicago could spare no money in luring away Alexander and Eddie Collins.

The identity of the other stars could not be learned but negotiations are understood to be on with several stars of the Pittsburgh Nationals and Detroit Americans.

Otto Knabe, Baltimore Terrapins are likely to be switched to New York, according to the rumors following the gathering here.

Tail-End Teams Most Dangerous

Why is it that a tail-end team—and a tail-ender alone—can hurt winning streaks?

Our much beloved Braves won fifteen out of sixteen games. Then they grappled with the lowly Reds. It looked like a cinch for the Braves, whereupon the Reds rose up and gave the Braves a pair of beatings.

The St. Louis Browns, always the joke team in the American League, beat Cleveland out of a pennant in 1908, busted Walter Johnson's winning streak last year, stopped the Athletics, halted Johnson after he had pitched over fifty scoreless innings and accomplished a dozen like stunts.

Colorado Thinks Well of Umpires

Baseball umpires in Colorado who are killed while on duty will be worth $2,500 to their widows or orphans. Umpires whose lives are clubbed with a pop bottle, whose noses are busted or who are otherwise injured while performing unpitrical chores will get compensation according to the seriousness of the offense.

Colorado last week put in force its workmen's compensation law, and this law includes umpires among its list of workmen who are entitled to its benefit.

PACKEY IS RATED AS "COME BACK"

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Would you consider that Packey McFarland had wandered so far from ring doings in the past two years as to be grouped with the army of come backs? Two years without drawing on a glove is rated a pretty long time by most of the pugilistic wiseacres, especially in the case of a temperamental cuss like Packey. Furthermore they say that Packey is meeting the very best that the ranks afford in Mike Gibbons, with Mike holding a positive advantage over Packey because Gibbons has been on the job all the time.

In a stretch of two years a man, even though he be as great a boxer as McFarland, will lose a lot of his speed, wind and unquestionably his judgment of ring distance. McFarland must take on a few trial horses to get the knowledge that will enable him to put himself back into form. Perhaps eight of the scheduled ten rounds in the fight of September 11 will be turned up by Packey before he discovers that he is not foolin' and jabbing with the same startling precision that made him stand out far over the available boys of a few years ago. Then people went to see how far off he would win.

Baseball Notes

NOW the Braves are tied with the dented Dodgers for second place and only stand two games to the rear of the Phillies. Wasdish on the Boys have won six out of their eight games in the West, while the Morning have tossed off four out of six current form strongly indicates that Wa are going faster than Tener.

WHEN the Braves hit Pittsburgh last Sunday night Manager Clarke stated that if the series between the two clubs had a decisive ending the club cleaning up would go on and find the spoils. Three battles were fought and the Braves registered a clean sweep. So, if Clarke's words come true, the Stallings machine is no going to stop until it assumes command.

DREXY TENER clipped "Bottling Jaws" Evers a three-days' suspension for his scrap with Clarke in Pittsburg Tuesday. Part of the days has already expired. The Trojan must miss the first two games on the list Saturday will be back at the bag. Here's hoping that Evers can hold up the jaw two days longer.

* * *

THE Indians are in town and the several veteran members of the troupe would like nothing ending the club cleaning up would go on and find the spoils. Three battles were fought and the Braves registered a clean sweep. So, if Clarke's words come true, the Stallings machine is no going to stop until it assumes command.

* * *

WEATHER permitting the "runs" are to be the Indians' in a twin bill with the Red Sox at Fenway Park this afternoon. Another big bill will be staged tomorrow. Saturday is getaway day for the Indians.

* * *

TERRY TURNER, as closest an infielder Bedore ever owned, is back in the Indians' line-up. He was out for upwards of a month with a buster finger. The cotton-top is going as fast as ever, in fact, is getting faster, as a utility third baseman in the league and hitting fairly handily with it.

* * *

JOE JACKSON, as absentee from the battling the last time the Polyites were in our midst, is back in the game. But the renowned clouter is going none too well, 'tis reported. At last he was batting with a .300 average the last times the swat marks were sprung, so, of course, will probably be the case when the Indians are in the Red Sox games.

* * *

FRED TOTSMIE, a young southpaw, brought into the big show by the Red Sox, is here with the Indians. Fred has only gone the full route in one game for the Indians this season and that was last Saturday. He only because he hasn't drawn many nominations. For rescue work Fred has done a woman of the town up as a kid who will tarry in the American League for many Summers to come.

Connie Mack a Grandpa.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics has been informed by wire that he became a grandfather when a bouncing son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCambridge. Mrs. McCambridge is Mack's eldest daughter.

BRAVES TO MEET THE CUBS TODAY

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The hustling Braves are in Chicago for a three-game series with the Cubs. When George Stallings was here with his crew back in mid-June, Boston stood in last place in the National League race, while the R. Bresnahan entry was gallivanting out in front.

Now matters are different. The Braves are knotted with the Dodgers for second place, standing only three games behind the Phillies, who become the contenders when the Cubs were toppled off the top rung, while the residents are hobnobbing along in fourth place. At that, the Braves are barely one full game ahead of the Cubs, and must win the honors in the series if they are to remain ahead of Joe Tinker's mother.

Captain Johnny Evers, set down for three days by President Tener for the part he played in Tuesday's scrap in Pittsburgh, must view today's initial set as well as tomorrow's, from the grandstand. Saturday he will be eligible to show himself before the home populace, which doubtless means a gala "house."

Two timely matters break in Pittsburgh for the Braves that Boss Stallings has his three best hurlers, Dick Rudolph, George Tyler and Hub Regan, fresh for work against the Cubs. He plans using them in order which means Rudolph will be seen on the hillock this afternoon.

Bresnahan's slab complement will be either Southpaw Pierce or Right-hander Humphries. The Braves picked up another recruit this morning. The new broiler is Southpaw Nehf, who has been showing to advantage with the Terre Haute (Central League) club.

Nonpareils to Try for Titles at Springfield

Members of the Nonpareil Rowing Club of New York are working like beavers to get in shape for the national rowing regatta, Springfield, August 12 and 13, and are confident of seeing at least one little trophy back to their home on the Harlem River.

The club will be represented in three races. Captain H. J. Pearse will row in the quarter-mile dash and in the senior singles. In the dash he will again encounter Everard Butler of Canada, who beat him by inches at Philadelphia last year.

Livingston, Mullen, Faber and McLaughlin will represent the club in the race for intermediate four-oared shells.

Pearse has been coaching this crew, but will turn it over this week to Fred Plaisted, the professional oarsman and assistant to Coach Rice at Columbia University.

Frank Baker Barred from Philly Battle

MEDIA, Pa., Aug. 5.—J. Franklin Baker will be barred from playing one game at least in the Delaware County League, and that will be the game with the J. G. Brills, the new club of the league, which plays Upland in Philadelphia Sunday.

Baker's understanding with "Connie" Mack was that he could only play with clubs outside of Philadelphia, if he decided to remain out of major league baseball. Hence it is that Baker will simply warm the bench at the Brill-Upland conflict.

Manager Miller of Upland has signed Enwright, a big hurler from Washington College, and bids have already been made for the big fellow by the Boston Americans and Athletics.

GAFFNEY INVITES BOYS TO OPENING

President James E. Gaffney plans having as his guests at the opening game at Braves Field, Wednesday, August 18, the boys in all the charitable institutions of Boston.

This morning the Braves' president sent out formal invitations to the boys of the various institutions, these invitations being made through the respective superintendents of the homes. The attendants at these institutions will accompany the boys to the game.

Among the schools and institutions remembered by President Gaffney are the Farm and Trades School at Thompson Island, Home for Destitute Catholic Children of Boston, Home for Jewish Children, House of the Angel Guardian, New England Home for Little Wanderers, St. Francis Orphan Home, Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children, Boston North End Mission and the Working Boys' Home in Newton Highlands.

Mayor J. M. Curley has already made arrangements with President Gaffney for 2,500 tickets, which he will distribute among the high school students, and the Mayor will also send out another batch of tickets to the boys in the higher grades of the grammar schools. All the youthful fans are to be accommodated in one of the large pavilions, which will be reserved especially for them. In all, President Gaffney hopes to see at least 10,000 boys witness the game and cheer the Braves.

President Gaffney was at the Braves' new park early this morning superintending the finishing touches upon the mammoth plant. That the work is rapidly nearing completion is evidenced by the announcement that the business offices of the club will be moved to Braves Field Saturday morning.

CRACKS ON EDGE FOR BIG MEET OF A. A. U.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—A glance at the names included in the list of entries for the track events of the senior national championships of the A. A. U., scheduled to take place Saturday afternoon on the Exposition track, will give an idea of the class that will be shown in the big annual event.

The best runners from all sections of the United States have sent in their names and competition for the titles should be keen.

Alva H. T. Meyer, the hope of the Eastern squad, is a runner of national reputation.

The 220-yard dash will bring out practically the same field, with the exception of Diamond, Chicago University's crack runner.

Ted Meredith of the University of Pennsylvania is expected to win the three-quarter mile run. There will be plenty of good runners to shove Meredith along, however.

Caldwell of Boston is the best looking half-miler. Norman Taber, holder of the world's record for a mile, and a half-miler of ability, is entered in the half.

Hannes Kohlehmainen, the famous Finnish runner, who is now a member of the Irish-American A. C. of New York, is expected to win the five-mile race. Willie Kyronen, a New York runner who has been giving Kohlemainen the battle of his life in every race in which they have met, will also be on the mark.

In the high hurdles Kelly, the world's champion, will meet Simpson, the University of Missouri runner, who tied Kelly's record of fifteen seconds at the Western Conference meet.

George Pariero of the Olympic Club's sprinter and joint holder of the world's 220-yard dash record, sprained a tendon in his left leg while working out and will be unable to compete in the games.

Courtney Is Better; to Resume Coaching

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Announcement was made today by the physicians in attendance upon Charles E. Courtney, Cornell crew coach, who has been confined in a hospital here since the Poughkeepsie regatta, suffering from a fractured skull, that Mr Courtney will be able to leave the hospital within a few days.

Although it will be necessary for him to rest quietly for several months he will be able to resume his duties as coach of the Cornell navy.

Lowell Man Working Hard to Land Big Trip to Series

A. J. PLANT.

ANOTHER VOTE-STANDING NEXT SUNDAY, FANS!

And with it some surprises for any candidates who are peacefully slumbering.

Nothing ever comes to him who merely "waits" and "hopes"—it's the chap who makes his "waiting" and his "hoping" mighty beneficial to the big job of everlastingly hustling that gets to the front.

So it is in this contest, fans—as in all others—the ones who win success will be the workers.

And the awards will be well worthy of the best efforts of all.

The contest will be over in four more weeks and then—seventy-five fans will be the envied of all New England fandom. While the majority of their fellows are scheming this way and that to fing a way to secure the credentials for the championship battles, the AMERICAN'S party of twenty-five will be safe in harbor with everything specially reserved for them—a special Pullman car on which to travel from city to city, wherever the games may be played outside of Boston, best horses, special down-front sections at all of the games and, in fact, a DE LUXE party as guests of the Boston AMERICAN for probably a week or more.

Worth working for, isn't it, fans?

Del busy!

Albert J. Plant of No. 821 Dutton street, Lowell, thinks that this year's World's Series games will be the "greatest ever." He further says, "Lowell is back of me—so watch my climb that vote list."

Williams and Niles Are to Clash Today

With the proper weather on tap, R. Norris Williams, 2d, the national singles title-holder, and N. W. Niles, the former State champion, will meet in the finals in the Longwood Bowl championship on the grounds of the Longwood C. C. today. The winner of the Williams-Niles encounter will clash with Maurice E. McLoughlin, the former national singles title-holder, for the challenge cup.

McLoughlin has won the trophy twice and one more victory will give him permanent possession of the valuable cup. Williams and Niles are scheduled to start their match at 3:3 o'clock this afternoon and, if the weather man gives the tennis "fans" hair a chance, an unusually large gallery will be in attendance.

McLoughlin to Play for Achelis Trophy

Maurice E. McLoughlin, now in Boston, will play for the Achelis Challenge trophy in the course of a tournament which starts next Monday at the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, R. Norris Williams, 2d, is holder of the cup.

Karl Behr and Ward Dawson will also attempt to win the trophy.

Mutuel Machines for Canada.

SARATOGA, Aug. 5.—Mutuel machines will oust the bookmakers on all the big tracks in Canada next year, according to S. N. Heiman, manager of the Dorval Park track, Montreal. When Dorval Park opens for its meeting, extending from September 10 to 17, the mutuels will be in operation there. Hamilton and the other mile tracks will follow suit next year. Toronto already supports the mutuel.

FEDS IN FAVOR OF TEN CENT BASEBALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Fighting Jim Gilmore, who directs the destinies of the Federal League, as a means of attracting fifteen thousand kopeks per annum to his person, flittered into town and lit at the Waldorf-Astoria. Jim is full of original ideas as the day he hit good old Broadway. Indeed, he is bubbling over with them.

Jim is going to become a citizen and voter of this town, where life is worth living. Indeed, he is now on the anxious bunt for office and expects to move Federal headquarters here within the next fortnight. Also he is going to have a club in his back door yard next Spring. For, according to his tell, the Federal League like the orbok, will run on forever.

"So long as Ban Johnson remains in Chicago," said affable Jim, "I shall tread on no tender corns in warming up to either the National or International League."

GILMORE PRAISES GAFFNEY.

The broadsides of Byron Bancroft Johnson evidently roll off Gilmore's thick epidermis like rain from a duck's back. The executive of the outlaw enterprise regards with greater favor the solons of the National League.

"Jim Gaffney is a pretty good fellow, isn't he?" queried Fighting Jim. "Yes, I thought so. Well, that is fine. I want to look over his new park in Boston and I want to do it right away. I am going to ask permission for myself, Robert B. Ward and C. H. Comstock to inspect the plant. I have been told that Gaffney's new park is the best in the business. I wish to see whether he has any new ideas that may be of benefit to us in equipping our York plant for next year."

It was suggested to Gilmore that he might do without Gaffney's favor by waiting until August 15, when the Gaffney edifice will be thrown open to the public.

"That would be too late," said Jim. "We wish to get busy at once. We have our site purchased. We have our money for building on hand. The sooner we start operations the better. Absolutely, New York will be in the independent ring next Spring."

Fighting Jim ,however, seems as adept as ever spreading the old stuff thick around the ears of his constituents. He doesn't care one rap for expense, and his henchmen are of the same mind when in his affable presence. Robert B. Ward, the angel of Washington Park, floated in at a time when Fighting Jim was expounding a number of advanced theories on baseball evolution, and R. B. nodded concurrence to every argument.

FADES TEN-CENT BALL.

"Fifteen-cent baseball in Newark?" mused Mr. Gilmore in reply to a point blank question. "Well, what do you think of it? Fifteen-cent baseball! Well, we'll go that one better and put it at ten cents. Ten-cent baseball is going to prevail in the Federal League. Not only Newark is going to observe the lower scale of prices, but every other Federal League club as well.

"From the start I have advocated ten, twenty, thirty cent baseball. Times have changed within the last ten years. Baseball is the only amusement that has not kept abreast of the times. We have the conditions in our parks and we will give our patrons entertainment at popular prices."

Another argument offered by Fighting Jim in favor of his ten cent idea was expressed in this fashion: "The bleachers are empty now"; there is absolutely no rebuttal to this so far as the Federal League is concerned; "and the game would be better off if they were filled. Players rise to their best efforts before large and appreciative crowds.

"We must remember that the boy of today is the man of tomorrow and if he is educated properly he will become a regular paying patron at the highest tariff. I believe in giving the youngsters a chance."

"THE RABBITS" COLUMN By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Owners of clubs in the American Association say that lower salaries are necessary to save the game. Speaking of the plans of the Association to make its properties pay, A. F. Timme, president of the Milwaukee club, said:

"It is not the intention of our club or of any club in the association to give the players starvation salaries. With us it is a question of cutting down expenses or going bankrupt with high salaries. When you consider that we have more than $1,000,000 invested in this association, and that during five years the owners have not realized 2 per cent. on their investment, you know we must reduce expenses. Some of the owners have been satisfied to make a living salary, take a chance on getting a fair rate on their investment.

"There is only one way to overcome the salary question, and that is to exchange the high-priced player and hire younger talent at lower salaries. I would prefer to see the players' salaries more evenly balanced. An average of $200 to $250 a month would be a reasonable salary."

Although forty-one years old, Eddie Plank, the veteran southpaw, who last Winter was unconditionally released by Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics, is twirling better ball this season than ever before as far as figures go. But of course he is pitching in the Federal League and that organization cannot be compared to the National and American Leagues.

Be this as it may, all this old man of forty-one Summers has done this season has been to fan his opponents down with an average of less than two runs per contest. If his average was based on "earned runs" it is almost certain that it would be considerably less than 2.07, the figure at which it now stands.

Right now Plank owns the best figure of any pitcher in the Gilmore circuit, with the nine per game are figured. And there are such pitchers as Claud Hendrix, Nick Cullop, Doug Baldwin, George McConnell, Fred Allen and others drawing salaries from the different clubs in the "outlaw" circuit. Here are a few things Plank has accomplished this season:

He has pitched three shut-out games.

In four clashes he has allowed only three hits and one of them was a 14-inning battle against Chicago, in which he set the Whales down with only one safety in the first 13.

Three times this year he has pitched a full nine-inning battle without passing a batter.

In 146 2-3 innings he has been hit safely only 96 times, an average of 6.67 singles per contest.

His record for the season is 12 victories and six defeats.

Baseball has reached such a pass in Cleveland, where the American League team has been a loser this year and the American Association team of Jack Knight is not welcome, that some of the newspapers pay more attention to the doings of the "amateur" teams than to the professional leagues.

Cleveland already has one stadium, where it is claimed one hundred thousand fans can see the "amateur" contests, and now another stadium is being built. The one under construction is being rushed to completion by the park authorities. The new stadium has a railroad embankment on one side and the other sides are surrounded by sloping hills. Inside this stadium several diamonds are being laid out.

* * *

Is the Cleveland stadium seats are not erected, but the spectators sit on the banks or stand outside the playing field and root for their favorites. Many former league players are finding it profitable to play on the "amateur" teams of Cleveland, for the business houses find it a good advertisement to employ men with baseball ability and have them wear uniforms marked with the names of their firms.

In commenting on the release of Outfielder Pat Duncan for further development, Fred Clarke discovered among the vagaries of big league hitting, and told why some players who break in like a flash later slump woefully, and then still later strike their stride and loom up as natural cloisters.

"All natural hitters do not shine upon their first appearances in fast company," said the leader of the Pirates. "I have known ball players to break into the big show who looked like natural hitters, and undoubtedly had ability along this line, but they failed at first because they did not understand the system in vogue among major league pitchers. As a matter of fact, they were outguessed time and again by the twirlers until they themselves began to wonder if they ever had been hitters.

"For instance, a pitcher may discover that a batter is weak on low balls. The batter may know his weakness. The pitcher, if he is wise, will play upon that weakness, which does not necessarily mean that the batter will get no high ones. On the other hand, the twirler is likely to cross the batter just when he expects a low one, and shoot him a high fast one, which he will miss because he is not looking for it.

"The battle for baseball success is a constant clash between batter and pitcher, and it requires experience and an understanding of the methods of the twirlers for the batsmen to make a good showing, no matter what their natural ability may be."

The Pittsburgh Post says that the members of the Pittsburgh Federals have a suspicion that "Chief" Bender was resorting to the use of the "emery ball" in a game there last week. One ball which Bender used was badly roughened, and it was thrown out of the game. Bender has not found much sailing in the Federal League this season. Any pitcher that resorts to the use of the "emery ball" tacitly admits that his prowess as a twirler is waning. It is not likely that the "Chief" has yet reached the stage in his career where he has to resort to trickery to deceive batsmen.

In the open team race for the Walter Scott trophy, the B. A. A. will be opposed by the Brookline Gym and Greater Boston teams.

The five-mile professional run will start at 3:30 sharp, with Abbie Wood of England, "Billy" Quesl, the Yale coach, and Jimmy Fitzgerald of Australia as the star entries. The event will be started by Lieutenant-Governor Cushing.

YOUNG DONAHUE WILL REFEREE ATLAS BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

"YOUNG" DONAHUE—now known as Referee Phil Powers—will be the third man in the ring when Sandy Ferguson and Jim McVey exchange blows in a twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The managers of the rival boxers are perfectly willing that a Boston official have charge of affairs when the big fellows exchange broadsides.

Lou Kelly, who is managing Ferguson, says that he believes Powers is every bit as capable as any referee who might be brought here from some outside city. George Lawrence, McVey's manager, has also no objections to offer to Powers. The latter officiated at the recent McVey-Langford mixup and his verdict, which was in favor of McVey, was a good one. The Roxbury favorite has also given a fine account of himself in the other matches at which he has been the third man in the ring.

FERGUSON is in fine condition for the bout Tuesday night. He's been holding down a seat on the dear old water wagon for the past seven months, and he believes he will win from McVey. If he should bresse in a winner, he will be in a position to talk business with Jim Coffey, who recently dodged a meeting with him.

McVey is preparing for the contest in New York. He's a boxer who always keeps himself in excellent physical condition. He should enter the ring ready to set a terrific pace from the very start. Sam made a big hit with the "fans" in these parts by holding Joe Jeanette to a draw and then defeating Sam Langford in the fastest heavyweight match held in Boston in many years. McVey is blessed with a left hook which will cause the Thirsty Hearts to weight a tremendous amount of trouble.

EDDIE MACK and Joe Eagan, the South End boxer, are traveling around in the same Pullman again. Edward and Joseph are old business associates. Mack has managed Eagan in most of his important ring bouts and has piloted him to a number of victories. Eagan, however, recently quit Mack's "stable." The result was that he got only a few bouts, while when he fought for Mack he finished second best. The South End boxer then asked Mack to manage him again and the latter consented to do so. Eddie now informs us that he would like to sign Eagan for contests with "Belgium" Brown, George Alger and Walter Butler. "Engan will be right when he enters the ring again," says Mack, "and he will make a monkey of our New England welterweights."

BARNEY SNYDER has also been heard from. You all know Barney. He's the clever little chap who at one time held the national 105-pound championship. He's now a regular professional and anxious to get bouts with Tommy Shea, Mickey Brown or any other 116-pound boys in this section of the country.

TONY MORENGO takes his trusty pen in hand and writes us from Philadelphia that he has been busy in the ring and that he has scored with a number of victories. Tony also says that he has boosted his way into his spare time posing for a moving picture company. Mr. Moreno better will be all right if he restricts his posing to the time when he is performing before the camera.

RING RESULTS

WARMINSTER, Wis., Aug. 5.—Gus Christie had the better of his ten-round bout with Mark Farmer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Harry Stone defeated "Pudding" Fitzpatrick in a ten-round bout at Rockaway Beach. Stone had Fitzpatrick in a groggy state at the close.

Lee Magee Pinched, Fined and Lectured

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5.—Lee Magee, manager of the Brooklyn Federals, who stated several days ago that all the umpires in the league were picking on him, was arrested here. He got in trouble with Harry Kramer, former press agent of the local Feds.

He was fined $25 and costs and severely scored by the judge. Magee was also charged with being inciting in the patrons of a downtown hotel.

"THE GODDESS"

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

(Copyright, 1917, by the Author.)

HE sat down once more. He was in the midst of one of those great open splashes of granite on the mountain side. As a matter of fact, he was near the edge of one of these masses. Within reach of his hand was a dense tangle of timber, dry scrub trees, shrubs and dead wood.

Suddenly this shrubbery caught and went off almost like an explosion. Professor Stilliter staggered backward from the intense heat, and realized presently that he was backing into another area of heat equally intense.

On his hands and knees he made off in a direction that took him winding between the two; he went quite a long way. In his breast was the first touch of panic.

Now for the second. Directly in his path there arose a steady, a vibrant, a horrid and incessant clashing; of all the sounds in this world the coldest blooded and the most menacing and sinister.

The fire urged him forward. The rattlesnake, coiled in his path, dared him to come on.

He rose to his feet, shivering and in an agony of fear and dread. Suddenly he cried aloud:

"My God! My God! What have I done to deserve this?"

Only the fire answered him, and the rattlesnake. Presently it became necessary for him to go forward or to burn to death where he stood.

He went forward with slow, high steps—a figure at once tragic and grotesque. But the snake, too, had grown uncomfortable in the increasing heat, and he, too, made off after one final balancing and drawing back of his head, the jaws wide open as if to strike.

Seven high arched steps Professor Stilliter took before he dared once more to put his hands to the ground and crawl. It was as well. One more step would have taken him over a little precipice.

Wherever he went the fire found him out and drove him on. A strong wind had risen, and as the flames showed their way down the mountain side and across they found more and larger stuff to feed on.

Professor Stilliter got heart every now and then. His hands and knees were lacerated, his face had had some hard knocks. His blind eyes smarted with smoke, and the air which he breathed half choked him.

He came at last to the forest and the fire followed him and drove him. Sometimes it would seem to him that it had taken a different direction, and that he was by way of escaping from it. It always smiled, however, by finding him out and driving him forward.

For a while he could keep his distance easily; then for a while he would have to hurry. It was during these that he got his worst hurts. But his natural strength and stamina, coupled with the furious desire to live, kept him going.

Once despair of saving his life seized him, and there came into his head the desire to meet death in a manly and dignified way. "I will stand here," he said, "until I burn." And he stood and squared his shoulders and held his battered and bleeding head high and erect.

But when the heat became so intense that his clothes began to give out smoke, he turned once more and fled.

To a man with average sight it would have been an easy matter to have eluded that fire. It had descended the mountain in a narrow path. It was Professor Stilliter's misfortune that he had been unable to sidestep it. By taking up his original stand at the back of the hut, instead of at the front, he need not have moved until help came.

Even now old man Smellsgood was standing at a comfortable distance from the red-hot ruins of the hut and wondering what fool had set it on fire and why.

Through the forest itself the fire was only burning a broad path, confined to this by open barrens and swamps or by timber too green and well watered to burn. From the mouth of the cave it looked like a receding column of smoke, and there was no real menace in it for any one but Professor Stilliter. Him it hounded on and on. And now, continually, like a child that babbles, he was asking God to save him. Christ to pity him.

To his delight, Freddie finds Tommy with Celestia

As he lost blood, his progress became slower and slower, and death stared him in the back. He was to have one short reprieve. He came to a gravelly bank so steep that in trying to get down it he began to slide, could not save himself, and was dumped presently into ice cold deep water.

For a moment the shock refreshed and invigorated him and gave him hope. He could swim and water cannot burn. Whether he was in a pond or a lake of some size he did not know.

If a lake and not very large, he could swim across, and at least find safety from the fire. At first it was easy to swim in the right direction, guided by the heat that came from behind, but after a while it was not so easy.

He was a good swimmer, and by floating and treading water he managed to get rid of his shoes, and most of his clothes. He would need them when he got ashore. Yes, but he would have to do without them. He began to tire again, and there was no sign of the opposite shore.

He was in one of the narrower lakes in that part of the Adirondacks, but it was several miles long and he was trying to swim it from end to end. The jig was up.

When he realized this he hastened the inevitable by screaming and screaming and then by bursting into tears and sobbing.

After a while his final struggles stopped. He floated in the water with his face under; a kind of foam came to the surface from the corners of his mouth. Twice he drew up his knees and kicked feebly, as if he was still alive and trying to swim.

After a long time, Freddie the Ferret, leading Celestia as if she had been blind, blundered to the foot of the cliff in which was the main entrance to the cave. Into this he penetrated a little way and there began to shout for Tommy with all his might. The only response was the echoing of his voice.

So Freddie led the weeping Celestia, and there she stood with a bewildered, puzzled look on her face, and both her hands being held by Tommy Barclay himself, who was breathing as if he had been running up hill.

How a Jawbone Lights Up the Past

Much Told by Find of Relic Millions of Years Old

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

WHEN a fact enlists the imagination it attaches itself enormously in force and value. Such a fact is the following: In a quarry in the province of Gerona, Spain, near the northeastern end of the Pyrenees mountain chain, a human jawbone, with a full set of sixteen lower teeth, was found imbedded in a very hard stratum of travertine rock, at a depth of some five yards beneath the surface.

The jaw was so thoroughly incorporated with the enclosing rock that no attempt could be made to cut it out lest it be destroyed in the operation. The rock was simply chiseled away sufficiently to disclose the outer surfaces of the jaw and teeth. Anatomical science is able to say that this jaw belonged to a man who had reached the age of about forty.

Geological science is able to say that his rocky tomb belongs to a time so remote (the Pleistocene period) that it is useless to try to measure its antiquity in centuries or millennia. Archaeological science is able to say that this man belonged to the Mousterian race, or Neanderthal group of primitive humanity.

The discovery of this strange relic was made by quarrymen, who, cutting out building stone, as long ago as 1887, but it is only in the year 1913 that the results of a complete scientific study of it have been published. The jaw, in its solid setting of rock, remained in the private collection of Don Pedro Alsius, who died a few months ago.

If the jaw had been entirely freed from its matrix, or stony mould, it would appear far less impressive. It is the same way with other fossils. When I see a palaeozoic shell that has been freed from its rocky prison I can realize its enormous age only by piling together the figures which represent the probable millions of years that have elapsed since that shell was inhabited by a living creature.

But when I see the same shell still imbedded in the original rock its antiquity deands visibly before me. It becomes a manifest fact, as solid as the rock itself. And so this human jaw, with its perfect teeth, turned of the yellowish color of the travertine rock, contains none of the dangerous inorganic ingredients so often found in "dyes," but is prepared in two shades. One to produce golden or medium brown, the other, dark brown or black.

The quarry in which the jaw was found lies in the bed of an ancient lake, of which only a small part yet remains, under the name of the Lake of Banolas. Formerly this lake evidently filled a large portion of the depression in the land, whose centre alone is occupied by the existing lake.

In that valley, around the shores of that lake, the man whose jaw has been so marvellously preserved probably passed his life. He was not alone. He belonged to a race which has left many marks of its presence and of its ingenuity on both sides of the Pyrenees Mountains, among whose foothills and in whose caverns prehistoric men seem to have loved to dwell. They were not beautiful to look upon. They gave no promise of Apollo in their figures. Here is what James Geikie, the geologist, says of the Mousterians:

"Anthropologists are not quite assured that throughout Mousterian times there lived on our continent a race characterized by a low, retreating forehead, enormous brow-ridges, large round eye orbits, massive jaws and feebly developed chin. The heavy limb bones are curved, and the whole structure of the skeleton indicates a strong muscular man some five feet three inches in height."

The Mousterians could make fire. They had good-sized skulls, but Professor Macfurdy says that their brains still lacked the superior organization that characterizes the modern human brain. Nevertheless, to make fire was a feat of applied intelligence that must cause us to respect them. As a race they seem to have disappeared somewhat suddenly, and they were succeeded by another race, the Aurignacians, "of a different type, both physically and mentally."

The Aurignacians, it is generally believed, were the inventors of the decorative arts. They adorned their caverns and their persons with products of artistic taste and skill, very crude as measured by our standards, of course, but intensely interesting as tokens of the spirit of progress animating man in his earliest days.

Dream Poems of the Famous

One of the most extraordinary examples of dream literature is Coleridge's "Kubla Khan." Though only a fragment is extant, the poet actually composed during sleep more than two hundred lines. He fell into a deep sleep in his chair. The sleep lasted three hours, and on awakening he had a vivid recollection that he had composed a poem. Immediately he began to put it to paper, but when he had written the few lines that we know he was called away, and on returning an hour later he found, to his mortification, that the remainder of the poem had escaped his memory.

"The Ancient Mariner" also owes its inception to a dream. Cruikshank, Dickens' illustrator, dreamed the story which approximates to the poem, and related it to Coleridge, who agreed that he would make the groundwork of a good poetic work, and ultimately wrote the poem as we know it today.

Probably the most quoted line in Thomas Campbell's poems is "Coming events cast their shadows before," and it was to an inspiration during sleep that the author owes its composition. When working on "Lochiel's Warning," Campbell, says Adam Miller, was for a long time unable to find a companion line to "This the sunset of life gives me mystical lore," and it was while asleep that his thoughts completed the couplet with "Events to come cast their shadows before." Awaking at 2 o'clock in the morning he seized his pen and committed the line to paper, altering it later to the form which it takes in the poem.

Lord Tennyson confessed that many beautiful passages often occurred to him during sleep, but on his return to consciousness they had usually faded away. On one occasion he dreamt what he thought to be the most beautiful poem ever composed, "a marvel of grace and beauty and high thinking." When he awoke, however, all he could remember was this:

May a cock-sparrow
Write to a barrow?
I hope you'll excuse
My infantile muse!

William Morris made an equally amusing confession when he was asked if he ever wrote poems in his sleep. He replied that after reading "Kubla Khan" and wishing he could dream something half as fine, he himself dreamt a poem that moved him to tears by its beauty. Asked if he remembered the poem when he awoke he answered grimly, "Yes, one line"; and this was the line:

"The moonlight slept on a treacle sea."

"And then I ceased to weep," he added, "and haven't wished to dream poems again."

One of the greatest of literary dreamers was Robert Louis Stevenson, and in his "Chapter on Dreamers" he relates how the "brownies" became useful in providing him with stories for his books. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" was directly due to one of his dreams.

In Our Wonderful World

Bees cannot take food at a lower temperature than 54 degrees Fahrenheit, and should never be fed during Winter. The hives should be so placed that the bees get morning but no afternoon sun.

A German naturalist, in the course of inquiries as to the phosphorescence of the sea, found that the phenomenon occurs whenever sea fishes are brought into a 5 per cent. salt solution. The luminosity begins apparently in the eyes, spreads over the whole fish, and increases day by day. The fish after some time seem luminous throughout. The phosphorescent substance is a kind of mucus, which appears dirty white by day and shines in the dark.

Japanese paper air cushions are said to have some advantages over those made of rubber. They may be rolled into a package of smaller dimensions when not in use, they will not stick together as rubber does after it is wet, and for pillows they are better because they have no odor. Their strength is marvelous; a man weighing one hundred and sixty pounds may stand upon one without bursting it. They are said to be waterproof, and to make excellent life preservers.

Monsieur Clemandot used fine glass wool for diffusing the electric beam instead of ground and polished. The glass wool, which is very fine, is placed in tubes, and the latter are united at their sides so as to form a lantern, conical in shape, with the taper downward. The tubes are closed at top and bottom by cardboard disks, and it is found that only about fifteen per cent. of the light is absorbed. The capacity can, however, be increased by inserting more "wool" and the light can be easily colored if desired.

Another "Right-O" Story—The Lesson of Summertime.

By DOROTHY DIX

"WELL," said the Bookkeeper, "the good old Summer is here at last. The Summer widower has bloomed out in all his dazzling beauty on the roof garden, and that's an unfailing sign that there is going to be a hot time in the old town."

"Yes," assented the Stenographer, "I saw a bunch of 'em last night looking like schoolboys playing hookey and frisking about like two-year-olds. Funny, isn't it, how the loss of his wife always chirks a man up?"

"The procession of hump-shouldered, listless, grouchy men going down to the North Station to see their wives off for the Summer, and the same line of dead-game sports, with their hats set at a wicked angle, who fox-trot away from the station after wifey's car pulls out, always makes me think of the 'before' and 'after' joking pictures of the patent medicine advertisements, while a six months' real widower always goes about looking as if he had got money from home."

"I don't see where the women who have nothing to do but to keep house but into this vacation business, anyway," objected the Bookkeeper; "pretty fierce, I call it, for the wife, who doesn't need it, to get a hike around to all the glad spots, while the poor husband, who needs a rest, has to stay in town and hold down his job."

"Oh, it's a double-action blessing!" exclaimed the Stenographer. "The wife is traveling for her husband's health."

"How is that?" inquired the Bookkeeper.

"She's giving hubby a rest and a change," responded the Stenographer. "Any woman who has wrestled with the servant question for a year; who has thought out 1,095 regular meals, and a few extra ones; who has had to cater to a family that demanded Delmonico fare on a quick-lunch expenditure, and had to sew, and twist, and turn, and spreadize a dollar over a five-spot void, has earned a holiday.

"So has the husband, and if he can't get away from his business the next best thing is to get away from the clack of his wife's tongue, the noise of the children, the everlasting monotony of home cooking, and the bondage of keeping home rules. It rests you, you know, to slip the collar."

"I should think too much Maria would get on a fellow's nerves," suggested the Bookkeeper.

"Sure thing," replied the Stenographer, "when people get to boring each other they take to throwing the hammer just for diversion and to liven things up. If most couples were married only three days a week, instead of seven, matrimony would be a good thing, instead of a scrapping match.

"You have to get away from even the people that you love every now and then to get a focus on their virtues, just like you have to board for a while to get a line on all the comforts of home. That's what makes the Summer vacation a life-saving station for married folks."

"Maybe you're on," assented the Bookkeeper.

"Oh, I'm Solomon all right," agreed the Stenographer; "you have to give absence a chance to make the heart grow fonder. When a woman starts off on a Summer vacation, she is sizing her husband up as an ordinary sort of dub, who doesn't shave as often as he ought to, and has a measly little soul that doesn't soar above the stock market, and as she looks at him she wonders what made her marry him.

"Before she has been away from home a week she gets out his photograph and thinks how handsome and distinguished looking he is. In two weeks more she has worked up a halo and encircled his noble brow with it, and by the time that Summer is over he is once more the romantic hero of her youthful dreams.

"Same way with the man. If he is decent he runs a bluff about how sorry he is to see the wife go, and how lonely he will be without her; but in his heart he is thinking how he is going to whoop things up while she is gone, and how joyous it is going to be to come home any old hour at night without having to make a sneak-in.

"For the first week he tears things up with both hands. He makes a night of it with the boys and wakes up with a headache and a dark brown taste of remorse in his mouth. He sits in a little game and gets sleepy, and then he begins to find out that domesticity doesn't fit you to be a rounder, and that if you are used to going to bed at 10 you don't want to be kept up until 3 a. m.

"He soon tires of having to think what he wants to eat at restaurants, and he finds out that he can't locate his clean clothes without a search warrant. He learns to appreciate the low, fussy but reliable, that takes care of him, and by the time his wife comes home in the Fall she is once more the angel that he wooed and won, and he wouldn't trade her off for a whole pony ballet."

"I've noticed that the Summer widower is a quitter," said the Bookkeeper.

"Right-O," said the Stenographer, "and as a promoter of domestic peace and happiness there is nothing like the Summer vacation for wives."

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of any or fuzzy growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury, but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

WILLARD TELLS OF THE EARLY CHAMPIONS

By JESS WILLARD.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.)

As I figure it, I am the thirty-ninth champion of the world. In almost 200 years of boxing, just thirty-nine men have been at the top of the heap.

I like to read about those old boys. Some of them were a pretty rough lot, but, take them all in all, they taught the kids of old England some mighty good lessons in gameness.

Old Tom Figg, the first champion of record, claimed the honors in 1719. Boxing wasn't enough for Tom; he also used the sword and single-stick and was a winner in all three.

Tom Pipes and George Gretting followed Figg, each taking turns in holding the championship. It was give and take between these two until the great Tom and as fast as one would win the title the other would take it away from him.

Later George Taylor, another Figg pupil, came to the front and proved himself the daddy of them all. But the real successor of Figg was Jack Broughton, who deserves to be called the "father of boxing." In 1740 he whipped Taylor and held the championship for ten years without ever knowing defeat.

It was Broughton who drew up the first rules of the prize ring, and it was Broughton who seemed to have the first idea of scientific boxing. He ruled as czar of the ring until 1750, when he lost the championship to Jack Slack, the Bristol butcher.

"Stevens the Nailer," beat Slack in 1760, but proved a dishonest rascal. He laid down to a second rater by the name of Meggs, and was kicked out of the ring.

Bill Darts, the dyer, whipped Meggs in a wash, and was a good, hardworking champion for four years, when a waterman, named Lyons, took the title away.

These were bad days for the ring. None of the men that followed Broughton measured up to him, and they had a way of selling out that disgusted everybody.

Lyons never defended his championship, and Darts came back again. He laid down to an Irishman, named Peter Corcoran and Harry Sellers whipped Corcoran in ten minutes.

It was in 1788, or thereabouts, that things began to pick up. Into the ring came Tom Johnson, Daniel Mendoza, the great Jew, Humphries, the "Gentleman Boxer," and Big Ben—all fighters, who had honesty, courage and science.

Tom Johnson, the first to show, stood five feet nine inches tall and weighed 196 pounds. From 1788 to 1791 he whipped every man that could be brought against him. He struck a terrific blow, and was the first champion to use any sort of footwork.

All the while Big Ben was coming along, and in 1791 he met Johnson for the championship. The Duke of Hamilton backed Ben for $2,500, but Johnson was a 7 to 4 favorite, for he was looked on as unbeatable. But the champion had given too much time to drinking and gambling.

Big Ben dropped him in the first round with a terrible blow on the nose. After twenty minutes of fighting, Johnson risked everything on a terrific right-hand swing. Big Ben dodged and the champion's hand smashed on a post.

Johnson left the ring and Big Ben, giving himself over to drink and bad habits, died in 1794.

Humphries and Mendoza must be put down as middleweights. The wonderful Jew stood only five feet seven inches and never fought at a greater weight than 160. Humphries was an inch taller and about ten pounds heavier.

Three times the two great rivals met and it was these battles, more than anything else, that lifted boxing back into tremendous popularity. Members of the royal family sat at the ringside and some of the crowds numbered as high as thirty and forty thousand.

The first battle was in January, 1788. All England was betting on Humphries and begging him to win. But the young Jew entered the ring with his head high and answered the yells of the crowd with a cool, confident smile.

Mendoza astonished the spectators by his speed, science and fury of attack. He drove Humphries to the ground in the first round, passed him again in the second and ended the third by winning a throw.

In the fourth round he drove Humphries to the rail and let loose a terrific right-hand jolt for the stomach. Tom Johnson, who was seconding Humphries, threw out his arm and stopped the blow. There was a cry of foul from the Jew's corner, but the referee refused to allow it.

At the end of twenty-one minutes of fighting Mendoza slipped and fell, spraining his ankle. He fainted from the pain and had to be carried from the stage.

(Tomorrow Willard will continue his record of champion fights and championships.

STATE UPHOLDS BIG HARVARD TECH GIFT

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts agrees to a transfer by Harvard College to Massachusetts Institute of Technology of a fund amounting to $5,500,000 created under the will of Gordon McKay, according to announcement by Attorney-General Attwell to the Supreme Court.

The fund was given to establish and maintain a separate school in industrial arts and sciences, to be known as the McKay School of Arts, particularly in arts relating to mechanics, physics, engineering, manufacturing, commerce, and also chemistry and electricity. Harvard thinks Technology could carry out the plan better in its new quarters in Cambridge.

On July 1, 1909, the trustees paid Harvard 1,000,000 out of accumulated income, and since then have paid the college $250,000 a year, representing excess income. Trustees of the McKay will have asked the Supreme Court for instructions as to their right to make the transfer. Mr. Attwill told the court that the State thought it would be a benefit to the public to have the transfer made.

NOW SEEK THE FIRST WIFE OF INMAN

Private detectives today searched for Clara Everett the first wife of George S. Inman, the fugitive cashier of the United Fruit Company, who is alleged to have stolen $125,000 of the company's funds.

Papers found among Inman's effects showed that he had kept up a correspondence with his first wife since she divorced him in 1911. The letters which she sent him from New York were found among some of his personal papers.

The detectives feel that if she is located that she can help them in solving his present whereabouts.

Clarice Everett was a Maine girl. She was formerly employed in a hotel near Kennebunkport. Detectives are searching for her relatives throughout Maine, while others are endeavoring to locate her in New York, where for some time she was a show girl and artist's model.

She was granted a divorce from Inman in 1911.

The Grand Jury proceedings were put over until tomorrow, at which time the District Attorney will present all the evidence in the Inman case to the jurors, who will report their finding on Saturday.

Mrs. Inman will be the chief witness, together with Arthur J. Lynch, who is attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Inman.

Mail Threats Sent Gov. Whitman's Wife

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 5.—Threatening letters received by Mrs. Whitman, wife of the Governor of New York, at her Summer home here, have caused guards to be placed both inside and outside the residence.

When Governor Whitman arrives here he was greeted by Mrs. Whitman and their two children, who were in care of a party inside the home to protect them from anyone who might succeed in eluding the watch outside.

JUDGE'S WIFE, NOW SELLING PIE IN CAFE, TO ASK DIVORCE

Mrs. Harriet T. Batchelder.

Mrs. Harriet T. Batchelder will be counsel, former District Attorney George S. Taft announced today that the next step will be a suit for divorce against her husband, Judge Clark T. Batchelder, one of the best known justices in the Commonwealth.

Mrs. Batchelder began her fight by filing a $15,000 alienation suit against Miss Bernice M. Hartley, the former Boston stenographer who later worked for the judge as his stenographer at Fitchburg. For over a year Miss Hartley worked as a stenographer in the offices of a magazine on Boylston street and lived at the Y. W. C. A. She is now hurrying back from California to fight the suit begun by the judge's wife.

In the meantime Mrs. Batchelder, former mistress of one of the finest homes in Fitchburg, is handing out pie and doughnuts and coffee over the counter at the Bon Ton Lunch in Fitchburg, earning her own living.

Former District Attorney Taft, counsel for Mrs. Batchelder, said today:

"After the first suit is disposed of, I assume that divorce proceedings against Judge Batchelder will follow. It is possible the divorce action may be brought before the other suit, but I cannot say just when at this time."

Judge Batchelder says:

"It is too bad. Miss Hartley is a nice young girl. I gave my wife a good home, one of the finest in Fitchburg. I am twenty years older than my wife. I hate to see her working in a restaurant. It is all too bad."

Mrs. Batchelder is about thirty and a blonde. Judge Batchelder is fifty with children and grandchildren. Miss Hartley is a Sunday school teacher of the Robinson Congregational Church, the most fashionable church in the city. Judge Batchelder is chairman of the executive committee of the church. Pending the trial of her suit Mrs. Batchelder has left the judge's handsome home and is working at the pie counter of the Bon Ton Lunch.

MRS. BATCHELDER'S STORY.

Here is Mrs. Batchelder's story:

"I am all through being a judge's wife. I have made up my mind and under no circumstances will I return. My case is in the hands of George S. Taft, and the sooner it is tried the better.

"I do not care to give all the details that will come out at the trial, but the case will surprise the people of Fitchburg, amaze the judge and set him adrift.

"I have in my possession intimate letters of the judge, showing his conduct. They came to his law office, and when he found I was getting them, he rented a postoffice box to intercept. But I got the letters sent there, too.

"In one letter, the girl asks him what he proposes to do with his wife. I have the judge's private diary and it contains interesting things in regard to the judge and his conduct. I became suspicious and went unexpectedly to the judge's law office.

WENT TO JUDGE'S OFFICE.

"The door of the private office was locked and I demanded admission, but the judge refused to let me in. He was in there. So was Miss Hartley. I forced my way in. I know many other things that will be told in court, and they will interest the people of Fitchburg. Don't make any mistake about that."

Miss Bernice M. Hartley.

BATTLESHIP AT HAITI LANDS 500 MEN

By International News Service.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 5.—The United States battleship Connecticut has arrived here and landed 500 marines and sailors to preserve order and prevent further outbreaks. American forces foreigners here breathed a sigh of relief. The force of revolutionary violence.

With the arrival of the Connecticut and the landing of additional of marines landed from the cruiser Washington was regarded as too small to preserve order, but with 500 armed Americans on duty it is believed that any critical situation can be promptly met.

The Connecticut entered the harbor last night and the task of landing the additional protective forces began at once. Its last men came ashore early this morning. The Americans were lodged in the barracks of the capital. The general belief is that the American occupation will be continued until a government has been set up and showed its ability to preserve order.

The Haitien Congress fears the partisans of Gen. Bobo and dares not vote to put his opponent, Gen. Blot in power. The political situation that remains highly critical.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Boston agents of the Pierce-Arrow, Packard and White companies know nothing authoritive regarding the report from abroad to the effect that the French government has concluded arrangements to take the entire motor truck output of those factories for an indefinite period.

That France, as well as other European countries, has been taking deliveries of trucks of the Pierce-Arrow, Packard, White and other companies for some time past is a well recognized fact. That these companies would enter into a contract whereby they agree to deliver their entire truck output for the benefit of those factories for an indefinite period.

The local agents of the three concerns all decline to make any comment. They, however, state that they have and expect to continue to deliver motor trucks to local customers. It is hardly impossible that any truck concern in this country would so tie up its factory as to prevent its taking care of its local trade.

Whatever contracts have been made it is a belief of those most interested in the motor truck industry that they have been made in such a manner as not to prevent in the slightest degree a factory taking care of its trade in this country.

Some months ago two big manufacturers of motor trucks did make a contract with a foreign country whereby they agreed to deliver to that country, for an indefinite period, the output of their plants, reserving, however, the right to fill regular orders and care for the business already on their books, as well as to continue to give service to their customers.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks ranged higher in New York at the opening with most of the trading in war order issues, upon which attention was centred. Railroads were irregular and quiet. Price changes in this list averaged small. Bethlehem Steel opened with a five-point gain and then sold at 276, a record high price. Allis-Chalmers was the weakest war stock in early trading. The New York market was active and business grew in volume when war stocks began to recede. There was a larger supply than yesterday and demand suddenly slackened. When the market began conditions and trend were the same as yesterday. U. S. Steel was strong this morning, soon selling above 71. There was more talk about the prosperity of the steel trade, and present and prospective earnings of this corporation. There was an improvement for copper.

RISE FOLLOWED REACTION.

After the slight reaction the market resumed its upward tendency. Within three-quarters of an hour Bethlehem sold up to 301. Among gains in New York within fifteen minutes were American Can ¼, American Smelting ¼, Inspiration ⅛, Chino ⅜, Anaconda ⅜, Canadian Pacific ⅝, Reading ⅜, St. Paul ¼, U. S. Steel ¼, Best Sugar ⅝, American Locomotive ⅜, Crucible 1¼, General Electric ⅛, Pressed Steel ⅛, Republic Iron ¼ and Studebaker ⅛. Declines included Allis-Chalmers 1⅛, Car and Foundry ¼, Baldwin ⅛, Westinghouse ⅛, Rock Island ⅛, Baltimore & Ohio ⅛, New York Central ⅜, Northern Pacific ¼, Southern Pacific ⅛ and Utah Copper ¼.

In Boston Alaska Gold was up ⅛, Butte & Superior ⅛, Greene-Cananea ⅛ and Tamarack ⅛. American Zinc was off 1, Mohawk ⅛, United Fruit ¼, and Boston & Maine ⅛.

Utah does not declare a regular declared an initial quarterly dividend of 12½ cents a share.

Better sentiment in the metal trade is reported. There is a little more domestic demand for copper, and as regards war order supplies it is said that options for large tonnages have been given at prices believed to be close to 18 cents a pound.

In the New York curb market American Beet Sugar and New York Air Brake were among stocks to sell at new highest prices in the first.

SUES HUSBAND'S PARENTS FOR $20,000

Charles J. Jacobs, a Roxbury contractor, and his wife, of No. 63 St. Alphonsus street, are today facing a suit for $20,000, filed by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles P. Jacobs.

In her complaint, Mrs. Charles P. Jacobs says that her husband's parents deceitfully and maliciously represented to her husband that she was not a faithful wife and was not a proper person for him to live with.

She claims her husband left her and went home to live with his parents, and that he has not supported her and her three-year-old child.

As a result of this, she alleges, she has been compelled to earn her living as a telephone operator.

Male Help Wanted.

GLAZIERS WANTED

A strike of men employed as glaziers (setters of glass) by concerns engaged in the Plate Glass and Sash industry in Boston and vicinity, has been called, and many men have summarily left their employment.

The purpose of the strike appears to be to compel employers to conform to certain rules formulated entirely by unions, covering, besides questions of wages and hours of labor, such matters as overtime, travelling expenses, the abolishment of piece-work, limitation of apprentices, etc., etc.

The unions have refused to submit these demands to arbitration or to meet the employers to consider the same.

The only course remaining, therefore, is to seek to fill the places vacated.

The employers desire to have only first class men and to such men, whether previously employed by them or not, opportunity is offered to apply either to the employers direct or to the office of The Masters' & Craftsmen's Societies, at Room 50, in the Master Builders' Building, No. 166 Devonshire st., Boston.

Only such men as are willing to work under Open Shop conditions are desired, and to such men the best wages will be paid in accordance with their ability.

"J. W. P." Tells Us of George Randidge

Who Had No Little Boys and Girls of His Own, Poor Fellow, But Who Will Be Loved and Remembered by All the Boys and Girls of Boston While One Brick Stands Upon Another in This Wonderful and Lovely Old Town

THE AMERICAN expressed last week a desire to know more about generous George Randidge, the Boston tailor of many years ago, who left $50,000 to the city of Boston for the purpose of establishing the Randidge Excursions, for "children of all denominations."

One of our friends, who is pleased to stand modestly behind his initials, but who is a Boston business man of standing and importance, has answered our call for Randidge "news" with the following interesting letter:

Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I note that in your yesterday's paper you asked for information in regard to Mr. George L. Randidge. As the writer was on quite intimate terms with Mr. Randidge, he will give you a few facts, as requested.

His "tailor shop," when I first knew him, something over fifty years ago, was at 25 School street. His clientage was among the upper ten and his prices were always the highest.

About 1870 he removed to Tremont place, in the rear of the old Tremont House, having remodelled a building from a private residence to adapt it to his business, and until his death he occupied it for that purpose. I believe these were the only stores he ever had in Boston.

He was a native of St. John, New Brunswick, and in manner and appearance much resembled the typical English squire, but he was never in England, as he frequently told the writer he was afraid to cross the ocean, much as he would like to.

Mr. Randidge, together with his wife and niece (never having had any children), lived for many years on Washington street, near Springfield street and Chester Park (now Massachusetts avenue), but I do not know where he lived after that locality began to change. He went but little into society, but he and his wife were always "first nighters" at the theatre.

His pair of white horses were much in evidence when there was sleighing on the "Brighton Road."

He had many eccentricities, among them being the fact that he never paid a bill by check, and never drew a check except to make an investment. The writer has often seen Mr. Randidge's bank book. His practice was to let his deposits accumulate until he had a sufficient sum and then to purchase real estate. At one time he told the writer that people did not understand what $100,000 was. As he expressed it, it was $6,000 a year forever; and in those days 6 per cent. interest was common.

I could tell many laughable things he said and did, but as you express a desire to know something of his life, we thought best to give you a few particulars within our knowledge, as you appear to have but little information in regard to him.

I am not aware of the amount of property he left, but it certainly was in excess of the amount you mention, as I have seen times when his bank account was more than that figure, and he had no debts.

During his life, to the best of my knowledge, he never showed any particular fondness for children, but he must have had a soft place in his heart for them, as his will has shown. J. W. P.

Boston, July 31, 1915.

We are sure the youthful beneficiaries of George Randidge's wonderful gift, and their parents, and all the "alumni" of the Randidge Excursions, which have been a midsummer feature of Boston life for so many years, are thankful to "J. W. P." for all he has told them of a real public benefactor.

The excursions have been resumed, and everybody in Boston is happy.

It is OUR idea that there are a hundred more George Randidges in the Boston of TODAY, and that, as fine and beautiful and rich and splendid a town as is OUR Boston, the Boston of a generation hence will be a hundred times as fine, as beautiful, as rich and as splendid.

Heaven bless the children, their city's hope, and heaven bless all the George Randidges, everywhere!

YOU can safely judge a man by his home.

The place in which he lives reflects his own character, his respect for his wife and children, his sense of order, his artistic taste.

Naturalists judge a bird by its nest. And the poorest, meanest bird is the cuckoo, that has no nest of its own at all.

This is the time of year when merchants in the big cities devote their energies to the furnishing of houses, concentrating attention on excellence of goods and cheapness of price.

It is a good time, therefore, for the head of the family to look over his house and find what it needs. The wise man believes in KEEPING THINGS UP.

What's in a Sneeze

By Woods Hutchinson, A.M., M.D.

WHAT'S in a sneeze? That depends upon the sneezer. But it's always something important. It's so absolutely sincere and spontaneous that it must mean something.

One can imitate a cough at will and carry out a whole Chestaw dialogue by hems and clearings of the throat, but few can stage a sneeze on demand, or stop one when it's headed for the open. A sneeze can no man tame.

At a very early time the quaint belief grew up that when you sneeze your soul leaves your body, and unless some one instantly pronounces a charm over you an evil spirit may slip in and take its place.

This, absurd and almost incredible as it sounds, is the actual origin of the world-wide habit, which still persists in full force among us, of instantly ejaculating some pious phrase, "God bless the child!" "Good luck!" "Gesundheit!" whenever we hear one sneeze.

A sneeze is always a sign for action, a call to arms. In spite of its unmanageableness its mechanism is of alphabetic simplicity. Its plainest explanation may be seen when a puff of irritating dust or a whiff of pungent vapor is blown into the face. Our outraged and insulted nasal mucous membrane wires its indignant "kick" to the respiratory centre over its private line, the respiratory centre wires back to the diaphragm and chest muscles, "Big breath; All together! One, two—let go!" and Achoo!" comes a cyclone of air up through the nose to fire the invader out bodily.

But the commonest and most troublesome form of sneezing is due to inside causes instead of outside ones, and hence does not give much relief. This is the familiar sneezing in the first stage of a "cold in the head," which is caused by the cold "bugs" having multiplied sufficiently and produced enough of their toxin, or poison, in the nose and throat to set up a peppery, burning irritation there. The stupid but well-meaning old respiratory centre mistakes their complaint of this for the common and well-known dust disturbance and tries to blow it out with a sneeze-blast, but, of course, with no result.

You are literally "full of cold" before you begin to sneeze. If you slip a thermometer under your tongue it will probably register 100 to 102 degrees, and the drought that you have just been jitting in, or your change of underwear that morning, or a sudden change in the weather, have had nothing whatever to do with your trouble.

But there is another kind of sneezing which gives no relief and which depends in a peculiar way upon the sneezer.

This is the famous and much-dreaded hay fever, or hay asthma. Though it consists chiefly of a months-long tornado of sneezing, it is by no means to be sneezed at or otherwise treated with disrespect by those who are unhappy enough to harbor it.

Its popular name is really a misnomer—indeed, a double misnomer—for there is little or no rise of temperature or true fever, and nine-tenths of it in this country has nothing to do with hay.

In a sense, unkind as it may sound, the chief cause of the calamity is the victim, him or her self. That is to say that it is due to a peculiar susceptibility on his part to the pollens of certain plants which are absolutely harmless, not even mildly irritating, to the rest of the community. Pollen is the male element of flowers, and its business is to blow and float about in the air until it can reach and fertilize the female element, or pistil (stigma). In the course of its wanderings some of it is snuffed up by a hay-feverite, and then trouble begins.

How comparatively rare this unlucky sensitiveness is may be judged from a curious source—by the estimated number of its victims. They are a most cheerful and philosophically minded group in spite of their tortures, and have actually organized at one of the most famous of their cities of refuge, Bethlehem, N. H., in the White Mountains.

What are the pollen pests which cause all this calamity in sensitive noses? It is an individual disease, to begin with, and the individualization often extends to the particular kind of pollen which is each sufferer's pet antipathy.

Some are set off by the sweet pollen of the meadow grasses, and to them the delicious fragrance of the new-mown hay is like a reek from the bottomless pit. Others start sneezing at the first whiff of any heavy, sweet-scented flower, such as lilies, tuberoses, sweet peas, mignonette; and even the lovely rose is so frequent a cause of trouble as to have a mild form of the disease named after it—"rose-cold." A rose by any other name would "sneeze" just as hard to these most unpoetic unfortunates.

But a great majority of "sensitives" owe their agonies to one of two great offenders against the olfactory peace of the community—rag-weed or golden-rod.

A campaign of extermination should be begun against it at once with scythe and hoe, particularly in suburbs, near parks, on vacant city lots, or about picnic grounds or pleasure resorts.

The reason why some hay-fever sufferers begin to sneeze with the regularity of the almanac, in a certain week, or even upon a certain day, in August every year, is due to the fact that this is the blossoming week of their "favorite flower."

Their only safety lies in flight—up to the mountains, down to the seashore, out to sandy islands, even to the cities—anywhere—anywhere that hay, rag-weed and golden-rod never bloom.

All three are chiefly flowers of the valley and the plain, are less frequent at a thousand feet above sea level, and usually absent above 2,000 to 4,000 feet. Hence the necessity of "flee as a bird to the mountains."

The first two, which cause three-fourths of the disease, are flowers of civilization, and need cultivated fields and fairly good soil to grow in, so that barren sea beaches and sand dunes, rocky ridges, dense forests and newly settled districts generally are fairly free from them. Civilization, however, provides its own vases for the pollen sneezers, and the central areas of great cities, where no flowers bloom except pavements and skyscrapers, often afford them complete relief.

Women Made Ridiculous

Says One Who Defies Age

By the Fallacy of Youth

By Dorothy Dix

"THE cult of youth has become an obsession with us," said a middle-aged woman who is brave enough to still celebrate her birthdays. "The papers teem with columns of advice to us about how to keep young. Our mails are loaded down with circulars advertising all sorts of systems of exercises and physical culture and creams and lotions, each guaranteed to keep us young if we will only use that particular specific against the encroachment of age.

"Of course, even the most ardent advocates of perennial youth realize that you can't keep the body forever young; that in spite of all the massage and cold cream and gymnastics in the world we are bound at last to acquire crow's feet, and gray hairs, and stooped shoulders.

"Then they tell us that if we can't be young physically, we must keep young mentally. So we are adjured to associate with young people, and to keep on reading and studying and going about, so that we won't get wrinkles on our souls, whatever we may have on our faces.

"Now I am one of the few who don't regard age as a curse, or even as a disgrace that you must try to conceal from the general public as long as possible. I don't even feel that growing old is a misfortune. Personally, I have enjoyed my lovely morning of youth. I have revelled in my busy, hard-worked noontime of life, and I look forward with nothing but pleasure to a tranquil, quiet twilight of age when I can fold my hands and say that I have done an honest day's labor, and that it is ended, and I have earned a right to rest.

"But that's not the popular way to look at the age question. The general view is that we must keep young at any price, or at least try to fool the world into thinking that we are young, and the results are grotesque as well as pathetic.

"Take, for example, the old women that we see all about us who would be so nice and sweet and lovable if they weren't trying to understudy their own granddaughters.

"I met one of my acquaintances the other afternoon at a country club. She's a woman well on in middle life, but she was rigged out in the sportiest of sport clothes—heelless white shoes, a brilliant yellow coat, with a dinky little hat to match, set on her dyed hair at a rakish angle, and with her face painted up like the side of a barn.

"I know this poor old soul well, and I know that she spends fully half of her time with hairdressers and beauty doctors and masseurs, trying to keep young. She puts in enough work on it to achieve success in any line of business, and she suffers enough to entitle her to be canonized as a martyr. And all to no purpose. She's old, and she looks old, and her idiotic youthful clothes only call attention to the fact of how old she is.

"I could weep when I think how often this woman drags herself out to dances to fox trot when her poor, tired old bones cry out for bed and hot water bags; how her thin old shoulders shiver under chiffon when they'd be so comfortable under flannel; how she'd enjoy slumping down of an evening in a rocking chair with her corsets off, and her bedroom slippers on, and a good old-fashioned novel, instead of rushing from a restaurant to a theatre, and the theatre back to a cafe. But she doesn't dare do it because she's got to keep young. She's afraid to indulge herself in the luxury of getting old.

"And perhaps the saddest thing about these women is that they have to ape the conversation of youth. Fancy a sensible woman of fifty-five or sixty having to roll her eyes and babble inanities at boys young enough to be her grandsons! It makes me sick to think of it. And yet every day I see some superannuated old flirt trying to act gay and giddy with men and pose as a charmer.

"Such women are disgusting, they are the greatest bores on earth, and yet if they only had enough courage to be their age, and talk like their age, they'd be interesting. Any woman who has lived fifty or sixty years has had enough of the vital experiences of life and seen enough of the world to make her worth listening to. If she is only not so afraid of dates that she expurgates everything worth while from her conversation.

"That's one side of the tragedy of trying to be young when you are not young. There is a tragedy on the other side also—the tragedy of the people who are the real Peter Pans of life, the people who never grow up in spirit, but whose bodies grow old.

"I know a woman like that, too, a pathetic old creature who is just as keen about going to every sort of amusement as any debutante, who is as avid of pleasure as a child.

"That is why I think the cult of youth is all wrong. Age is inevitable. It is bound to come to us all, and it seems to me that the wise thing is to welcome it as a friend instead of fighting against it as an enemy—for it is an enemy that is bound to conquer us in the end."

And the still wiser man knows the inspiring or depressing effect of surroundings upon children, upon the entire family, and upon those who come to visit—an effect infinite in its power.

Buying wisely and economically is an art and a commercial science. The head of the family should realize that at this time of the year, when every able merchant concentrates his attention and his entire organization on the problem of buying furniture, competing with his rivals in business, THE WISE MAN SEES FOR HIS OWN SAKE WHAT THE MERCHANTS HAVE GOT TOGETHER.

It is probable that one million dollars—apart from the value of the merchandise—would not pay the cost of assembling the various exhibits of furniture that the stores require for each annual sale in the Autumn.

That amount of money spent investigating, planning, hiring high-priced buyers, etc., is all spent for the benefit of the man or woman who AT THIS TIME undertakes the problem of wise furniture purchasing and "keeping the house in order."

This hint should be of value to those who know the importance of keeping things up, and making of the family interior what it should be, the most attractive place that the children or other members of the family know. Show this to your wife, if you see it before she does.

How'd you like to be an anthropologist, go on a search for the remnant of a vanishing race reported to inhabit the Coquina hills, and find instead a bevy of Broadway damsels posing as cave-dwellers for "movies"?
